"I think we may coax out a moral or two from the facts which have lately come under our view."

Recalling when some 30 years ago we were thrilled to find a picture of Marie Tempest, in a box of Old Dominion cigarettes, it is a little difficult to appreciate the truth of this dispatch announcing that she is now the best dressed woman in London.

"Goody Price, Goody Price, now riddle me right, Where may we see this frolicsome night?"

The night club and the dance hall have superseded the old-fashioned kitchen, with its pan of taffy on the stove, and the tub of apples to be bobbed for by the boys and girls, as the setting for the modern Halloween, and yet we used to think, back in the late Nineties, that we were fin de siècle!

We don't pretend, either, to know how the prohibition referendums are coming out next Tuesday, but we know what kind of a statement Wayne B. Wheeler is going to issue.

We presume that the New York writer who has made a contract marriage with a magazine editor prudently reserved her second serial rights.

One may note in passing that Miss Corlies Palmer is finally married to Brewster's millions.

Spain has been without a parliament now for more than three years, but Primo de Rivera lacks the staid qualities of the Stuart kings, and Alfonso, as Thomas Ingoldby would say, "looks to your Grace with no little anxiety."

Queen Marie, suffering the pangs of car sickness as she sways and bounces over the tedious rails, receives a loving birthday message from her royal lord and master, who reports that he is having a perfect time. There is no place like home. "Yet there at his ease, with the whole Court around him, King Ferdinand sits 'in his glory'—confound him!"

Now comes the season when the Southern gentleman, suh, puts a gallon of cawm under the back seat and drives to town to vote the dry ticket, so how are you going to figure these referendums, anyhow?

One would need "A Chair on the Boulevard" with Mr. Leonard Merriam to get a real close-up on this art sale riot in Paris. The cost of living on the Boul Miche is indeed heart-breaking when a piece of cheese can be knocked down for 95,000 francs. Sacre bleu!

OLD-TIME VIRTUES HOLD YOUTH TODAY, SAYS LORD BISHOP

Thousands of Collegians Applaud Visitor at Mass Meeting.

BELIEVES EVOLUTION THEORIES ARE TRUE

Will Depart Now for the South and West to Address Students.

Stoutly defending the youth of today as no different in any essential virtues from the youth of his own generation, the Rt. Hon. and Rt. Rev. Arthur Peabody, bishop of London, at a mass meeting for students under the auspices of George Washington University, American university and the University of Maryland in Memorial Continental hall last night, was applauded roundly for his sentiments by thousands of students from local colleges.

Bishop Ingram in his talk to the college men and women, also declared in his opinion there was no contradiction between science and religion and that he believed in evolution. He held that the animal body of man slowly evolved into perfection through aeons of time until it reached the period when man was endowed with the qualities of humanity.

At the same time the bishop was careful to emphasize his opinion that man and the monkey are of different order and that a monkey never could be made into a man. He contended science and religion are not antagonistic, because they exist on different planes.

The bishop said the church does not back up war as such and pointed to his plea to America to join in the League of Nations to bring world peace as proof. He said there is one thing worse than war, however, and that is disgrace, and that England would have known it had she permitted Germany to swallow up Belgium in 1914.

Urges Rally to Christ.

The lord bishop also took exception to statements that the Church is opposed to labor and cited the fact that the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and himself had fought for a fair living wage for the striking coal miners of Great Britain.

Bishop Ingram urged the students to rally to the standard of Jesus Christ as the one influence in their lives which will endure. He told them the boys in the world war who stuck to their religion came home unsullied by the temptations of French towns which were worse than German shells. He said many of those who forsook their religious training succumbed to the evil influences of the war zones.

That God will judge the world by the standard of Jesus Christ, was asserted by Bishop Ingram. Jesus Christ was the greatest friend of woman the world has ever known, he said. "He found her a

$140,000 Is Expended In Food Law Fight

Sacramento, Calif., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—More than $140,000 has been spent in the California election campaign for and against a proposal to impose a 2-cent tax on every pound of oleomargarine produced for sale within the State. In affidavits filed today with the secretary of state, the California Dairy council showed $40,796 had been spent in support of the proposition, which will be voted on at the polls next Tuesday, while the Anti-Food Tax association listed expenditures of $99,859 in opposing the measure.

Rockefeller, Jr., Buys Five Blocks in Harlem

New York, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Purchase of five city blocks in Harlem, by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., became known today with the filing of deeds. The property is close to a block bought by Rockefeller last spring for a model tenement for negroes.

For what purpose the additional five blocks were bought has not been announced, nor has the purchase price been revealed, although the assessed value is $396,500. If the new purchase should turn out to be for low-rent tenement uses it will be the fifth such project undertaken by Rockefeller.

State Luncheon on Train Marks Birthday of Queen

Children Give Mother Cigaret Lighters—King Ferdinand Congratulates Marie by Cable—Her Majesty Is 51—California Tour Cancelled.

Queen Marie's Train, En Route to Winnipeg, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—The birthday gifts of Prince Nicolas and Princess Ileana to their mother today gave no indication that Queen Marie of Roumania is going to give up smoking an occasional cigarette. The prince gave his mother an enameled cigarette lighter, while the princess gave a silver lighter. How the royal children happened to select almost identical presents has not been divulged.

Many other gifts came from members of the entourage, along with cablegram congratulations from government officials in Bucharest. Prince Carol, former heir to the throne, and now in Paris, also remembered the day with a message.

Historical precedent was set by Queen Marie today when she celebrated her fifty-first birthday anniversary with a state luncheon in the dining car of her private train as it sped toward Winnipeg through the desolate North Woods country of Canada. Members of her immediate party, railroad officials who are her hosts on the continental tour and the five newspaper correspondents aboard the train were her majesty's guests.

The queen, Princess Ileana and Prince Nicolas sat at separate tables and chatted with the others over the meal. Champagne glasses were raised in toasts to her majesty, to King Ferdinand, President Coolidge and Gov. Gen. Viscount Wellington of Canada. "God bless you, mummy," said Nicolas to his mother, as he lifted his glass.

"Thank you, Nickey," was the reply.

A birthday cake, presented to Marie last Monday by the New York Central railroad, was cut at the queen's table, each guest receiving a portion.

The luncheon with 27 guests in addition to Nicolas and Ileana was in deep contrast to the state dinners held in Marie's castle on her last visit to Canada.

U. S. JURY CONVICTS 2 OF MURDERING OSAGE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—After months of work in which thousands of dollars were spent, the government today convicted William K. Hale, northern Oklahoma cattleman and alleged leader of a murder conspiracy that struck terror into the Osage tribe of Indians several years ago. Hale, known as the "King of the Osage Hills," and John Ramsey, a cowboy farmer, were found guilty by a jury in Federal court on a charge of slaying Henry Roane, an Osage Indian who was shot to death, the government charged, so that Hale could collect $25,000 insurance he carried on the Indian's life. The jury imposed life sentences.

Nearly a score of persons met violent deaths in the Osage country within the space of two years. As death followed death, the Osages, the richest aboriginal people in the world, became terrorized. Some strung electric lights about their homes for protection at night.

Investigations came to naught. Persons believed to have knowledge of the mysterious killings were found dead, one in what was made to appear a train accident.

The government stepped in to protect its Indian wards. Department of Justice.

SOUGHT BY SHERIFF, WOMAN KILLS SELF

Suspected of Poisoning Her Spouse, Who Is in Washington Hospital.

Front Royal, Va., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Hart Walters, wife of James Walters, who lives eight miles from Front Royal, shot herself dead today with a shotgun while Sheriff R. F. Collins and his deputy were forcing their way into the house to arrest her. She was suspected of having poisoned her husband two weeks ago by putting arsenate of lead in his food.

Mrs. Walters was on furlough from the Western State hospital for the insane at Staunton, Va., and had barricaded herself and three sons, 7, 9, and 13 years old, respectively, in the house for seven days. The husband was taken last week to George Washington hospital, Washington, D. C., where he is in a serious condition. Mrs. Walters blew off part of her face and died instantly. She was about 40 years old.

P.).—Contract marriage of Eugene Whitmore, editor of Sales Management of Chicago, and Theda Corcoran, writer, was announced today for tomorrow evening at the Waverly place, home of Philip Salisbury. No license is necessary for such a marriage but a written contract must be signed by both parties in presence of a supreme justice and filed with the recorder. Justice Louis D. Gibbs will officiate at the unusual ceremony.

POLITICIANS IN HAZE OVER TUESDAY VOTE ON LIQUOR QUESTION

Clarification of Issue Is Chief Hope From the Coming Election.

ACTION IN 12 STATES WILL PROVIDE LESSON

Prohibition Attacked From New Front; Evils Stressed, Not Its Principle.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

The extent to which the impending election will clarify the prohibition issue remains a mass of conflicting theories after an effort to determine the undercurrents which the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act have set to work in national politics.

The "wet" and "dry" question enters into the campaign calculations of the voters in the majority of States in the Union. It is a State-wide issue in seven States. Legal action only recently clouded the referendum in Missouri. It will play a part, in addition, in scores of congressional campaigns and in innumerable county and municipal elections.

Yet, although the conflict of opinion is nation-wide, it crosses so many party lines and existing political theories that leaders in all parties are awaiting the outcome of Tuesday's balloting before venturing any prophecies as to the manner and form in which sentiment on both sides of the question will crystallize.

Chieftains Greatly Interested.

There is no problem, it is apparent, after a tour of several States in which chieftains of both the Democratic and Republican parties are more interested and concerned than the course of the vote which will be swayed next week on the prohibition issue.

In many instances these ballots will directly bisect party lines, forming in effect a third party movement, and in several States create a balance of power that will determine the fate of the candidates appealing to the electorate.

Sharp political workers, more often on the "wet" side than the "dry," told this reporter that they believed but one of two courses could be followed as the result of the existing campaign—either the adoption or absorption of the "wet" cause by one of the two existing major parties or the formation of a party, probably slow in its beginnings, with prohibition repeal as its principle.

Revolt Leads to Referendums.

Such expressions are found, of course, for the most part in those States where the revolt against the

SOLDIER KILLS SELF AT HIS WIFE'S HOME

Woman Collapses After Husband Swallows Poison at Rear of Residence.

Standing in the rear of his wife's home at 6520 Georgia avenue northwest, last night, Private Clyde Lyles, attached to the medical detachment of Walter Reed hospital, swallowed a quantity of poison which resulted in almost immediate death. When Mrs. Lyles learned of her husband's act she collapsed.

Police were able to learn only meager details of the soldier's death. Officials of Walter Reed hospital threw their customary veil of mystery around the case. Police were unable to discover any motive. So far as could be learned they reported, he had had no disagreement with his wife.

He was found lying in the rear yard of Mrs. Lyles' residence and was removed to Walter Reed hospital by a passing motorist.

Houdini Has Relapse; Little Hope for Life

Detroit, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Harry Houdini operated on recently for appendicitis, suffered a relapse today. Physicians tonight reported his condition as low, with poisoning from streptococcus peritonitis which has developed, spreading generally through his system. The crisis is expected within the next 12 to 36 hours. The after-developments of the operation into a particularly virulent form of peritonitis, physicians said, give Houdini but a slender chance for recovery.

BOOTLEGGING BY AIR NETTED $5,000,000, U. S. AGENTS ALLEGED

Former Convict Is Called Head of a Ring With 45 Breweries.

HIJACKERS EVADED BY USE OF PLANES

Parker, Who Flew With Food for Blizzards Victims in 1923, Is Indicted.

Chicago, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—How a convict released from prison virtually penniless amassed a fortune of $5,000,000 by using airplanes in his bootlegging business and operated 45 breweries, was disclosed here tonight, according to Federal agents, following the indictment today of eight men charged with prohibition law violations.

The transportation by airplane of liquor and stocks prevented hijackers from robbing the firm of supplies that developed into profits, it was asserted.

Frank G. Parker is said by Federal agents to have amassed more than $5,000,000 by airplane bootlegging since he was released from the Joliet penitentiary five years ago. His eight employees were also named in the indictments, which resulted from a raid in which 5,000 gallons of beer and $100,000 worth of distillery equipment were seized in a brewery alleged to be owned by Parker.

Figured in Air Rescue.

Parker was imprisoned for participating in an automobile theft ring. He became known to the public in March, 1923, as the aviator who carried food and clothing to the group of fishermen trapped by a blizzard on South Fox Island in Lake Michigan. Later he figured as the guarantor of the Carpenter-Gibbons fight at Michigan City, Ind.

Parker is called by Federal agents one of the biggest and wealthiest bootleggers in the country.

His sentence to prison followed his arrest in February, 1917, at Minneapolis as the "crown prince" of a group of Chicago automobile thieves, which was headed by Ira Bond, a Minneapolis broker.

He is said to be an official of the Archer Products Co., of Chicago, which has endeavored in extensive Federal court litigation to force Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley to re-issue an alcohol withdrawal permit for that company which he revoked.

Parker, according to Special Agent Patrick Roche, also was connected with a Canadian group of bootleggers.

Federal indictments also were returned against five officers of the Keystone Freight corporation, alleged agent of an Eastern wine concern, and against Dr. Eugene Friedman, local agent for the California Wine Co., and R. J. Stowell, owner of a laboratory. The latter two were charged with attempting to bribe a prohibition agent to obtain approval for their permits from the prohibition department.

Told Son Injured, She Ends Life; Boy Unhurt

Latrobe, Pa., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Hearing a report that her son had been seriously injured in a football game, Mrs. Lillian A. Chalmers committed suicide last night by drowning in a creek near her home here. It was later learned that the Chalmers boy was uninjured but his roommate was slightly hurt in a gridiron accident.

Indians Use Fire Arrows To Rout Besieged Slayer

Crow Agency, Mont., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Two officers and a negro were killed and another officer wounded here tonight in an exchange of shots following the officers' attempt to arrest Jim Bel-den, the negro, who barricaded himself in a barn and was routed only after Crow Indian braves resorted to their traditional tactics of firing the structure with flaming arrows.

Sheriff Robert Gilmore of Big Horn county was shot and killed when he approached the building to demand the surrender of Bel-den, who had defied an order to leave the agency. Victor Three Irons, chief of police of the agency, surprised the negro of connection with recent robberies.

JUGULAR VEIN SEVERED, MAN DIES IN COLLISION

Francis Sheridan Succumbs After Auto Crash on North Capitol Street.

TAXICAB DRIVER IS HELD

His jugular vein severed when he was thrown through the windshield of an automobile, in collision with a taxicab at North Capitol street and Randolph place, yesterday afternoon, Francis Bernard Sheridan, 20 years old, 1805 North Capitol street, died from loss of blood a few minutes later in Sibley hospital.

Sheridan jumped to his feet after the accident and ran almost a block before he was stopped by Policeman A. W. Grinnell, of the Second precinct, who rushed him to the hospital in the automobile of Ross Linder, 238 R street northwest. Dr. S. M. Becker, assisted by Dr. W. S. Ritchie, tried in vain to check the flow of blood.

At the time of the accident Sheridan, who was in the cab business, was returning to his home in the automobile of his friend, Policeman Ralph H. Knapp, 25 years old, of the Second precinct, who was off duty. They were driving north on North Capitol street. A taxicab, driven by Charles A. Ross, 22 years old, 340 Eastern avenue, Takoma Park, and occupied by his wife,

British Coal Strike Is Being Mediated

London, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Negotiations with a view to settling the coal strike were in progress today at the headquarters of the cabinet in Downing Street, it being understood that mediators of the Trades Union council succeeded in obtaining concessions from both the government and the miners. It is declared that the mediators have been able to bring the parties much nearer together, so that the situation may be considered hopeful for a settlement when the negotiations are resumed next week.

Brewster Marries After Mexico Divorce

Los Angeles, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Eugene V. Brewster, millionaire publisher of motion picture magazines, today announced his marriage last Wednesday to Corliss Palmer, winner of a beauty contest conducted by one of his magazines several years ago. The ceremony took place in Ensenada, Mex., within 24 hours after Brewster had been granted a divorce from his wife by a Mexican court.

Brewster and his bride returned to Hollywood last night and will spend their honeymoon there.

Mrs. Mills Is Reburied.

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Determination of whether the tongue of Mrs. Eleanor Mills was cut out after she was slain with the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, engaged the attention of investigators today.

Dr. Otto H. Schultze, of the New York district attorney's office, said: "I can't say just now whether the tongue was cut or not. There must be an analysis to determine that definitely, but it seems very likely that it may have been done. I don't know, however, and will not know until I complete analysis of organs which I am taking to laboratories in New York City."

Mrs. Mills' body was returned to the grave shortly after 8 o'clock this morning in the presence of a small group of newspaper men and authorities.

Morristown, N. J., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Justice Charles W. Parker, who will preside at the Hall-Mills murder trial, which begins next Wednesday, said today he could not stop broadcasting of the trial by radio so long as it was not done from the courtroom.

He made this statement after Gov. Moore, in referring to him a protest against broadcasting of the trial, had requested that he take steps to prevent it. Justice Parker said he would not allow broadcasting from the courtroom. "I will not permit the courtroom to be disturbed," he said. "Run-

HALL-MILLS RAZOR BELIEVED IN HANDS OF STATE OFFICIAL

Weapon Is Delivered by Investigator Active 4 Years Ago.

PERMIT TO EXHUME RECTOR'S BODY GIVEN

Doctor Withholds Finding on Whether Tongue of Mrs. Mills Was Cut Out.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—The recovery of a razor believed to have been used to cut the throat of Mrs. Eleanor Mills when she was slain four years ago with the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and the issuance of a permit to exhume the clergyman's body from a Brooklyn cemetery, were new developments in the famous murder case today. They threw investigators into a feverish state of activity in their efforts to gather up loose ends before the opening in Somerville next Wednesday of the trials of the four persons indicted for the murders.

The razor, bearing dark stains, and, according to Joseph A. Faurot, former police inspector of New York, giving evidence that it had been under analysis by experts, was brought to the office of Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson by Frank Caprio, who worked on the original investigation for eight days.

Supreme Court Justice Dunne, of Brooklyn, issued the order for the exhumation of the minister's body. The autopsy will be performed by Dr. Otto H. Schultze, who yesterday examined the body of Mrs. Mills. He will attempt to determine the course of the bullet which passed through the clergyman's head, which the State declared has never been established.

No Autopsy Before, He Says.

Recovery of the razor followed upon a preliminary report of Dr. Schultze, who yesterday performed an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Mills.

The disclosures, Simpson said, were climaxed by the assertion that no autopsy previously had been made on the body, contrary to the reports of authorities who conducted the investigation four years ago.

Dr. Schultze informed him that a razor had been used to slash the woman's throat. Two gashes were made; each started at the back and ended underneath the chin.

The cuts were made after death, the absence of blood on the lungs proving that her throat was cut after respiration had stopped.

Her death was caused by one of three bullets. The first of these struck the forehead and came out at the back of the skull, taking a downward course; the second entered the right cheek and passed out at the left side of the head, and the third hit the right temple and went down into the head at an angle of 45 degrees. Thereby the conclusion was reached that the assailant shot from the front, Simpson said.

BELL WILL SUBMIT UTILITIES TANGLE TO HOUSE INQUIRY

Congressional Action Expected on Issues Raised in Bus Line Case.

COMMISSION WITHDRAWS FROM GARAGE CONTEST

Opposition to Lease of Car Barn Withdrawn to Narrow Points in Dispute.

Early transfer of the local traction tangle from the District building to the Capitol was indicated yesterday when Lieut. Col. J. Franklin Bell, engineer commissioner and chairman of the public utilities commission, announced the intention of calling to the attention of the House subcommittee investigating the District government the recent action of the commission he heads in refusing to consider the increased motorbus rates until the Washington Rapid Transit Co. clears its legal status.

This was interpreted as making it certain that there would be a congressional inquiry into the charge that an act of Congress was violated when the North American Co. acquired financial interests in local traction companies without special sanction by Congress.

Expected Congress to Act.

It has not yet appeared clearly that the public utilities commission can ultimately do anything about it if it finally is determined that the law was violated. It has, however, been stated that Congress is sure to be interested in whether or not its statutes have been ignored.

Col. Bell pointed out that congressional investigations last spring evinced an interest in the public utility regulations, and he assumes, he said, that they will want to make their own inquiry into the situation now existing.

The commission yesterday narrowed its battlefield against the bus company by withdrawing its former ruling indefinitely postponing action on the company's petition for permission to convert the Capital Traction Co.'s car barn basement at Fourteenth and Decatur streets into a garage.

Reopens Garage Issue.

This petition was coupled with the one for permission to increase bus fares and both were held in abeyance pending determination of the legality of the company's status. Yesterday the commission announced its willingness to permit the company to proceed with the garage, in the following letter to E. D. Merrill, president of the bus company:

"The public utilities commission has given further consideration to your request for approval of the plans for additional garage facilities, as contained in your letters of September 8 and October 20. The commission has no objection to your proceeding with this work, but the company itself must assume responsibility for the plan."

This letter was drafted by William McK. Clayton, new temporary counsel for the commission, and was held, by commission attaches, not to constitute a recession of the commission's attitude toward the company, but rather a tightening of the lines.

It was pointed out that the letter specifically refrains from sanctioning the expenditures for garage facilities, but merely states that the commission interposes no objection.

Concentrate on Fare Fight.

Motives underlying the change in policy were said to include a desire to have attention concentrated on the increased fare controversy alone for the present as the issue held pending while transfer of control of the company without permission of Congress is investigated.

Another reason cited for the action was a desire that the inquiry into the legal status of the traction companies should not operate against public benefit in any particular. Holding up the fare hearing keeps fares from being increased. But if the company installs the proposed garage, noise of buses now stored in the open at night will be discontinued. Neighbors of the bus terminal have complained of the noise connected with parking the buses outdoors.

Both Merrill and John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., asked the members of the commission to facilitate the garage transaction, and they removed the commission's principal objection to the deal by extending the leasehold period of the car barn basement from five to ten years.

DRUG SALE CHARGED TO WALTER REED AID

Private Serving as Orderly to Be Discharged After Narcotic Squad Inquiry.

The discharge of a private serving as orderly in one of the wards has been recommended by Walter Reed hospital authorities, following disclosures yesterday that this man has obtained a small amount of narcotics and sold it. Word of the illegal use of the drugs was obtained through an investigation of two agents of the narcotics squad of the Treasury Department.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln C. Andrews requested Col. L. G. Nutt, of the narcotic division, to investigate a report that narcotics were being illegally used at the hospital. The investigation was launched after the suspicious attitude of two veterans' bureau patients, according to hospital authorities. One is said to have admitted using drugs.

A Treasury Department agent succeeded in purchasing a small amount of narcotics from the suspected patient, when the back of a nurse was turned, according to information received by investigators. The name of the guard was not disclosed.

Plans for Catholics' Charity Drive Ready

Final plans for the Catholic charities $40,000 drive the week of November 15 were completed at a meeting of the campaign committee last night at the organization's headquarters, 635 F street northwest. Charles W. Darr, has been named campaign chairman.

The team captains are Misses Mary McCormick, Anna J. Keady, Blanche Gardner, Estelle Kearney, Gertrude Marsden, Alice Bicknell, Minnie Mohler, Margaret Keane, Margaret Breen, Mary L. Baukett, Alma Hupp, Helen M. Anthony, Stella McGarvey, Ethel Annan and Annie Nutty. The drive will open with a dinner at the Mayflower hotel November 15, addressed by Archbishop Michael Curley, of Baltimore. The Rev. John O'Grady, director of Catholic charities, will present a silver loving cup to the most successful team.

Girl Scouts' Needs Outlined on Radio

Miss Evelyn Porter Gleaves, local director of the Girl Scouts of America, last night spoke over radio station WRC on the principles and aims of the organization. Her speech was a part of the Girl Scout Good Cheer week, which ends today.

"The girls come to us because they want to, not because any one forces them and there isn't a 'must' or a 'don't' in our program," Miss Gleaves declared. "We in Washington have three great needs. First of all the sympathy and understanding of the citizens of Washington. Second, leaders of 21 years or over to captain our troops and form new ones. Our third need is money to meet our budget for the coming year."

$30,000 PAYMENT ENDS FAMILY WAR OVER LEE FORTUNE

Doctor's Settlement With Widow of Brother Halts Possible Litigation.

RECEIVES CLEAR TITLE TO ANCESTRAL HOMES

Had Declared Woman Should Have No Share in Wealth.

The possibility of further litigation in the long-drawn-out legal battle between Mrs. Mary M. Lee, 1733 Riggs place northwest, and her brother-in-law, Dr. George Bolling Lee, of New York, definitely has been removed by an out-of-court settlement, it was learned yesterday.

Mrs. Lee is the widow of Col. Robert E. Lee, grandson of the famous Confederate general. The father of Col. Lee and Dr. George Bolling Lee was Gen. W. H. F. (Rooney) Lee. When he died in 1891 he left the big Lee estate to the widow, Mrs. Mary Tabb Lee. Shortly after the latter's death in 1924 Dr. Lee filed a suit contending his brother's widow had no interest in the estate.

Under terms of the settlement that just has been reached out of court, Dr. Lee pays to Mrs. Lee $30,000, and she, in exchange, gives him clear title to many of the family heirlooms and to the two famous Lee estates, Ravensworth, in Fairfax county, Va., and White House, in New Kent county.

Brent Gave Widow Share.

White House was owned by the widow Custis and it was there the wedding supper was held to celebrate her marriage to George Washington. The mansion at Ravensworth, which was built a century and a half ago, was destroyed by fire several months ago.

Judge Samuel Brent, in a decision handed down in Alexandria last May, held Mrs. Lee was entitled to a share in the estate. It was reported Dr. Lee would note an appeal, but a move was started then, looking to the settlement which just has been reached.

Mrs. Lee was represented by Attorneys Claudian B. Northrup, John E. Laskey and James B. Johnston. Dr. Lee was represented by Attorneys John Barbour and Thomas Keith.

Rettue, 20 years old, 2939 Mills avenue northwest, was arrested in Wilmington, Del., while on route to New York city to marry Jerry G. Leonard, 3700 Eighteenth street northeast, who was to have been Rettue's best man at the wedding scheduled for yesterday morning, was also arrested. Both men were returned to this city yesterday by Headquarters Detective Henry Jett and were charged with grand larceny in connection with theft of the automobile of Charles S. White, 3218 Walnut street northeast, from Tenth and F streets northwest Wednesday night.

GOVERNOR IS URGED AS HEAD OF DISTRICT

Meeting at Mrs. Henderson's Home Approves Having Coolidge Appointee.

Abolishment of the present form of government in the District and the substitution of a "governor" to be appointed by the President in its stead would be subservient to the best interests of the people, it was decided last night at a meeting in the home of Mrs. John B. Henderson, attended by presidents of several citizens associations.

Under the plans outlined last night, the governor would appoint expert heads of the several departments coming under his jurisdiction, who would form the governor's council. The council would act in an advisory capacity similar to that of the President's cabinet.

Last night's discussion will be carried before the various citizens associations at their next meetings. It is hoped to have a working plan formulated in time to present it before the House committee investigating District affairs at its next meeting, November 8.

WORKER FALLS TO DEATH AS SCAFFOLD TOPPLES

Companion Clutches Beam After 10-Foot Drop at Power Plant.

INQUEST WILL BE TODAY

Elmer Martin, 35 years old, 35 M street northwest, was killed yesterday afternoon, and a fellow workman narrowly escaped a similar fate, when a scaffold on which they were engaged in steel construction in the Benning Potomac Electric Power Co. plant, fell from under them, when accidentally released by another employee.

Martin fell 35 feet to the floor of the boiler room, crushing his head. Although an Emergency ambulance was called immediately, the man was pronounced dead on arrival by Dr. E. F. Leonard. Dr. Nevitt will conduct an inquest today at 10:30 a. m. at the District morgue.

Oscar C. Rader, 32 years old, 926 E street southwest, Martin's companion, avoided death or serious injury when he grasped a steel beam after a drop of 10 feet. He suffered no ill effects from the experience.

The accident occurred about 3 p. m., police say, when R. E. Sturges, 906 H street northwest, working in a coal bunker adjoining the scaffold, accidentally unscrewed a nut on an eye-bolt which supported the structure on which the men were standing. He was not arrested by police, who are awaiting the outcome of the inquest.

The men were employed by the R. E. Morrison Co., contractors, as iron workers. The local firm is said to be subcontracting the work for Stone & Webster, contractors, of Boston.

Alexandria Stores Victimized on Checks

The police have begun a search for a man who, within the last 24 hours, victimized several merchants of Alexandria with bogus checks and disappeared, after realizing an amount estimated at $300 from his operations.

The method used is one supposed to be generally known. It consisted in making a purchase, which in most cases was ordered delivered, and tendered in payment a check on a local bank for more than the amount of the purchase, receiving the difference in cash. The accommodating merchants apparently accepted his checks without question, had the goods delivered to the addresses given, only to find that no such person lived at the address and, when the checks were presented to the banks, found that the drawer was unknown.

The Corby Baking Co. was sued yesterday in circuit court for $25,000 damages for alleged personal injuries by Ruth N. Powers. Through Attorneys Leeman and Dean the plaintiff says that on May 13 a bakery truck collided with her automobile near Thirteenth and E streets southeast.

Chicago Speech Follows Rumor
That Coolidge Opposed
Republican Nominee.

Special to The Washington Post.
Chicago, Oct. 29.—Just a few hours after local newspapers had printed a red-hot speech of Frank L. Smith, which contained a virtual challenge to President Coolidge, who had been represented as opposed to Smith, the White House today gave out a formal statement declaring that the President had expressed no attitude toward his choice for United States senator in Illinois.

Mr. Smith's speech was to the effect that there was no difference between the campaign contributions which he received from Samuel Insull and the campaign cash which the Republican national committee receives from alleged trusts to elect Presidents.

The President does not resign, he said, because big monopolies

ANDREWS' PICTURE OF DRY WORK DARK

More Popular Approval of Law Necessary, Says Aid to Mellon.

Philadelphia, Oct. 29. (By A. P.).—The prohibition law "must meet with more popular approval" and its responsibility must be shared by local with Federal authorities, Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of its enforcement, warned tonight before the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Solution of this problem, the general held, demands, in addition to same enforcement, that "the agencies of social reform be induced to take up again the task of education."

Painting a gloomy and "very curious picture" of the past, the dry chief took a hopeful view of the future, predicting the early elimination of rum smuggling and the plugging of the sources of supply of alcohol and beer.

PHIPPS DECLARES PROSPERITY RESTS ON VOTERS' CHOICE

Republican Chairman Says
Party Success Is Necessary to Nation's Welfare.

CITES TAX REDUCTIONS AND COOLIDGE ECONOMY

Asserts House and Senate
Should Be Elected to Back
Up the President.

(By the Associated Press.)

The question for voters to decide on Tuesday was summed up last night by Chairman Phipps of the Republican senatorial committee as constituting a choice between a return to the "conditions of 1921 and the Democratic years preceding" or a continuation of the "splendid Republican achievements of the past five years."

"On the decision of the voters rests our national welfare and prosperity for the two years to come," he asserted.

Senator Phipps contended that in 1921, after eight years of Democratic rule, the country "was in a state of economic ruin and chaos."

He said public affairs were disorganized, private enterprise and industry faced bankruptcy, 5,000,000 wage earners were idle, farmers faced ruin, taxes throttled progress, wages were low and living costs high, and no effort had been made to demobilize many war time activities of the government.

Cites Appropriation Acts.

Reviewing the activities of the Republican administration from 1921, he said:

"At once $2,500,000 was slashed by Congress from appropriation requests prepared by the Democratic administration as irreducible. The public debt has been reduced by more than $4,500,000,000. Annual government routine expenditures have been lowered by $3,000,000,000. Federal taxes have been cut three times for a total of nearly $2,000,000,000. The farmer has received $2,357,000,000 loans from the government in addition to remedial legislation which has started him on the road to progress."

"Commerce, industry and business in general are flourishing. The nation is at work. A division in administration simply means deadlocked legislation and economic stagnation. The electorate should return a Republican Senate and a Republican House to work in harmony in carrying out the Republican policies of President Coolidge."

Democratic Clubs

Meet in Baltimore

More than 700 members of the United Democratic Law Enforcement Clubs of Maryland, representing 93 organizations within the State, held their first convention since their institution, six months ago, yesterday in the Southern hotel of Baltimore.

Mrs. J. W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Md., convention chairman, addressed the members. Other speakers were Bishop W. F. McDowell, George A. Lamar, Mrs. Edward Franklin White, the Rev. Edward L. Watson, Mrs. Daniel C. Chase, Mrs. F. Cromwell Stoll, Mrs. Edward C. Wells, Mrs. E. Allen Craig, Mrs. Morris K. Barroll and Miss Helen Pumphrey.

Known Campaign Methods.

Mr. Smith has a great deal of information about the way the Republican party collects campaign funds. He was State chairman of the Republican committee in Illinois from 1914 to 1920. His campaign manager, Allen F. Moore, is a member of the Republican national committee from Illinois.

In accepting contributions from Samuel Insull, Ira C. Copley and Clement C. Studebaker, all public utility magnates, Mr. Smith holds that he has done nothing worse than any Republican President who registers "use" of the State commerce commission, had control of the service rates of the utility corporations managed by Messrs. Insull, Copley and Studebaker.

POLITICIANS IN HAZE ON LIQUOR QUESTION

eighteenth amendment and its enforcement provisions has led to the referendum to test public sentiment.

In "dry" sections—and there are many such—the tendency seems to be to ridicule the idea that repeal of the existing statutes can ever be made a national issue.

The fact remains that numerically almost one-third of the nation will be given an opportunity on Tuesday to declare its position without equivocation on the prohibition question.

New York and Illinois have on their ballots the following proposal: "Should the Congress of the United States modify the Federal act to enforce the eighteenth amendment so that the same shall not prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation or exportation of beverages which are not in fact intoxicating as determined in accordance with laws of the respective States?"

In Wisconsin and Colorado.

The issue in Wisconsin is whether the sale of 2.5 beer shall be legalized. Colorado will be asked to say whether its legislature shall provide for the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor by the State, when such action will not be in conflict with the Federal law.

Nevada voters will be asked to express their opinion on the success or failure of national prohibition and whether they want Congress to call a convention of the States for the purpose of amending the eighteenth amendment.

California and Montana will vote on the repeal of State enforcement laws. The same question was to have been put in Missouri but a decision of the State attorney general held that the referendum had no right to a place upon the ballot.

In Illinois, Missouri, Massachusetts and Ohio the "wet" and "dry" issue is a sharply drawn grating of the observance at the University of Michigan, was born at Mendon, Ohio, August 10, 1862, and had been connected with the University of Michigan faculty since 1889.

G.O.P. CONCENTRATING ON MAIL BALLOTING

Fifteen States Remain Open to Voters; Election Three Days Away.

With only three days remaining before election, those who are conducting the campaign here for the Republicans are concentrating on getting those who are going to vote by mail to execute their ballots before it is too late.

As usually is the case as an election draws near, the local headquarters of the Republicans, 823 Fifteenth street, where information regarding the election laws, the time for mailing ballots and notary day and night during the last week, A. E. Chaffee, of Nebraska, in charge of the voters' information division, said last night that more than 3,000 ballots had been executed during the week. He anticipates the eleventh hour rush to start today.

Samuel J. Prescott, chairman of the local campaign committee, directed that the workers yesterday lay particular emphasis on the fact that there are only fifteen States in which it is not yet too late to apply for absentee ballots. They are Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin.

NORTHAMPTON TRIP THRILLS PRESIDENT

Tells of Reception to Be Given by Citizens After Casting Vote.

Northampton, Mass., can be no more thrilled over the fact the presidential ballot will be cast there Tuesday than President Coolidge over the proposed trip.

The President discussed in detail with callers yesterday the plans he has made for going to Massachusetts and the program he understood had been arranged by his fellow townsmen. After recalling that four years ago he hurried from Huntington, W. Va., to Northampton to vote, the President said that in addition to the formality of voting he and Mrs. Coolidge will be guests at a reception given by the citizens of the town.

The presidential special train will leave here Monday night, and the chief executive expects to be back at the White House the following night. President and Mrs. Coolidge expect while in Northampton to visit their home, now occupied by Mrs. Elmyra Goodhue, the President's mother-in-law.

EVANGELIST DENIES CLOTHING IN TRUNK WAS HER PROPERTY

Lingerie and Costly Robes
Discovered in Baggage

STRAND OF HAIR SENT TO STATE UNIVERSITY

Will Be Compared to One
From Head of Evangelist;
Case in Judge's Hands.

Los Angeles, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Alma Sempie McPherson, Angelus temple evangelist, whose preliminary hearing on conspiracy charges ended yesterday, today positively denied that any of the gowns and woman's wearing apparel found in Kenneth G. Ormiston's trunk in New York belonged to her. She characterized as "ridiculous" any intimations that the apparel was hers.

Mrs. McPherson also bitterly denounced those who would connect her with the clothing found in the trunk and asked authorities to prove that any of the expensive robes, gowns or dainty lingerie ever were her property.

Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the evangelist and codefendant in the conspiracy charges, seconded Mrs. McPherson's denial.

Cares Nothing About It.

After her emphatic statement the evangelist became peculiar.

"It doesn't affect me in the least," she said. "They seem to have found a lot of expensive garments in Ormiston's trunk and it is to be expected that the authorities would immediately declare the case solved. The clothing is not mine, and furthermore I know or care nothing about it."

While Mrs. McPherson was denying any knowledge of the clothing in the trunk, District Attorney Asa Keyes, who claims that the discovery of the clothes "solves" the McPherson case, sent a strand of hair found in a boudoir cap in the trunk to the University of California at Berkeley for examination and analysis by E. O. Heinrich, criminologist. Several strands of Mrs. McPherson's hair accompanied the specimen, Keyes announced.

This strand of hair found in Ormiston's trunk was forwarded to Keyes by airmail and the trunk with its contents is now on the way to Los Angeles.

Keyes made public today a list

Noted Scout, 92, Dead; Mother, 111, Survives

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—A proud figure of the old West, 92 years old, who had served in the civil war and as scout under Kit Carson, and whose mother is still alive to prove the sturdiness of the stock from which he came, was found dead in bed today in his Oakland home.

He was Ira H. Merrill, mining expert and building superintendent. His mother, Mrs. Almira Merrill, 111 years of age, lives in Lansing, Mich. Two sons, two daughters, eighteen grandchildren and four great-grandchildren survive.

Merrill's adventures started with the battle of Bull Run in 1861 and ended with a hard prospecting trip of some fifteen hundred miles into the Mojave desert a few months ago. He had prospected in Colorado, ranged with Kit Carson in some momentous trail-breaking in the plateau country and westward, and had many brushes with Indians and other frontier characters.

of the contents of the trunk, which follows:

A lace boudoir cap, containing a single strand of reddish hair.

A silk evangelist's robe, red with grayish lavender collar and lining.

An expensive and ornate evening gown, bearing the notation that it was imported by a Los Angeles store. It is of yellow gold cloth with gold mesh beads trimmings.

A black beach cap and a blue flannel cape.

A light blue and white two-piece dress.

A black evening dress, covered with black jet scales.

Two head pieces of brilliants.

One has imitation pearls at the side, the other a single pearl in the center.

A pair of black satin pumps, showing considerable wear, with buckles.

Several pairs of shoes of expensive make. They were made by a Philadelphia house for a Los Angeles shoe store.

Decision Due Wednesday.

The preliminary hearing for Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sieff closed yesterday when the defense completed its case. Municipal Judge Samuel Blake announced that he would decide next Wednesday whether the three women must go to trial.

Included among the mass of documentary evidence which Judge Blake must review before making his decision are photostatic copies of the famous Carmel grocery lists.

ONE BANK BANDIT SLAIN, OTHER HIT BY POLICEMAN

Wounded Detroit Officer's Bullets Fell Brothers in Attempted Holdup.

SHOT INJURES JEWELER

Detroit, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—One bank robber was shot to death and another wounded shortly before noon today when a passing patrolman thwarted their attempt to rob the Bank of Detroit branch at Chopin and Michigan avenues on the West Side.

Patrolman Frank J. Dombecky, whose shots dropped the two robbers, was wounded by the holdup men's return fire. One bandit who had remained at the wheel of their automobile, escaped.

A fourth victim of the gun fight was John Skimanski, a jeweler. He was trimming his store window near the bank when a stray bullet struck him.

All the wounded men are expected to recover.

Two of the robbers, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, the other with a revolver, entered the bank, training their weapons on John Block, the manager; Charles Davies, teller, and Estelle Zelek, a clerk.

At the same moment Albert Coffey, a bank guard, opened fire with a shotgun from a turret at the rear. At the first shot the holdup men turned and fled.

Meanwhile, children of the neighborhood, witnessing the attempted robbery, called to Patrolman Dombecky, Dombecky and his companion, Patrolman William Cadde, reached the bank as the bandits ran out.

The robbers fired, one of the first shots striking Dombecky in the groin. Leaping against the bank, Dombecky continued firing until struck by two other bullets. Both bandits who had been in the bank were dropped by the policeman's bullets, one dying instantly. The other was wounded three times in the legs. At receiving hospital he gave his name as Arnold Porter, age 18. The dead man was Carl Porter, 34, brother of Arnold.

The contents of a shirt pocket saved Arnold Porter's life. A bullet found in the bungalow at Carmel. The original lists disappeared from the Los Angeles county grand jury room last July during an investigation of the evangelist's abduction story. They were written, the prosecution contends, by Mrs. McPherson.

Douglas Swan, handwriting expert, one of the last defense witnesses to testify yesterday, charged that the grocery lists had been "doctored." He based his opinion upon an examination of photographic enlargements which showed, he said, "patching alterations" to have been made by pencil tracings over the original handwriting.

headed directly for his heart pierced the pocket and a tobacco box within it but was halted by a box of cartridges. Two of the cartridges exploded.

The dead robber was shot only once—through the heart. Dombecky during a riot last September shot and killed a man who had just slain his partner, Patrolman Frank Marcinkowski.

Church Is Bombed

3 Times in 10 Months

San Francisco, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—For the third time in ten months, SS. Peter and Paul Catholic church here was bombed early today. A dynamite blast set off at the door of the edifice shortly before worshippers began to arrive for early mass and several thousand dollars damage to the structure.

The Rev. Father Di Martini, who was sleeping in the building, was only a few feet from the exploding bomb but was uninjured. The doors were blown off, stained glass windows were shattered and a hole was made in a granite stairway. Nearby houses were shaken slightly.

WOMAN FOUND BOUND AND GAGGED IN FLAT

Alleged Swindler, She Says,
Sent Armed Men to Steal
Evidence Against Him.

New York, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Marie Mabel, described as owner of the Hotel Wilmax, in St. Louis, was found and gagged in her West Sixty-eighth street apartment today by two armed men, who then ransacked the apartment.

She said they searched for but failed to find two checks, which she was to have presented in police court today against a real estate broker who, she alleges, defrauded her of $12,000.

A representative of the law firm representing Mrs. Mabel found her when he called at her apartment after she failed to appear in court. When Magistrate Goodman learned of the incident he held Leonard Hardy, defendant in Mrs. Mabel's action, in $5,000 bail. It is alleged he gave her false and worthless deeds in real estate transactions in which she gave him $12,000.

Wright Is Cleared Of Fugitive Charge

Minneapolis, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Fugitive from justice charges against Frank Lloyd Wright and his companion, Mme. Olga Milnoff, were dropped in police court here today at the request of Wisconsin authorities.

This action came when Assistant County Attorney David Goldbloom read a telegram from District Attorney Henry J. Bohn, of Baraboo, Sauk county, Wisconsin, saying no action would be taken there on the statutory charges upon which the fugitive charges were based.

SHORT $463,976, FLEES, PROMISING TO PAY BACK

'I'm Now on Honorable Road,'
Writes Memphis Bank
Cashier; Sends Audit.

TAKES $3,000 CURRENCY

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Shortage of $463,976 in the accounts of Courtney Gilissen, 30-year-old teller in the bank of the Commerce & Trust Co., Memphis, was announced today by officers of the institution after an auditing of the books in the savings department, where Gilissen worked.

Executives of the bank today received a letter from Gilissen, who disappeared Wednesday after he found examiners working on his books, announcing his shortages in figures which agreed approximately with those of the accountants.

"I'll be back in a couple of years and pay off everything. I'm now on the honorable road," the letter said. The letter gave a detailed report of his alleged embezzlements from savings accounts and specified each account, giving serial numbers, and added, "this accounting was made in order to save the bank the expense of an audit."

The teller took the money to promote the manufacture of an automobile body finish preparation he has been financing here, his letter indicated. Gilissen, whose wife and child were left here when he departed last Wednesday morning, has been an employee of the bank since boyhood. Police of Memphis have broadcast descriptions of the fleeing bank employee, requesting authorities everywhere to arrest him.

Entering the bank Wednesday morning, Gilissen saw State bank examiners going over his books. He left hastily and bank officials announced that he had taken about $3,000 in currency as he left.

Spain Soon to Call National Assembly

Madrid, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—It was learned in well-informed quarters today that a decree will be issued by the government of Premier Primo de Rivera late in November convocating a national assembly.

The last parliament in Spain was dissolved by royal decree on September 16, 1923. It was followed by a military dictatorship, which was superseded in December, 1925, by the present civil government under Primo de Rivera.

THE FARMER AND THE TARIFF.

The congressional elections next Tuesday will indicate somewhat the effect of the political assaults upon the tariff of 1922 as affecting the farmers. The elections in the so-called corn States will measure in some degree, at least, how much of a dent was made by the radicals in Congress when they demanded the enactment of the McNary-Haugen bill.

The farmers receive the benefit of the tariff on agricultural products amounting to $300,000,000 annually. In addition, the demand in the home markets is stimulated by the high wage levels prevailing in the United States as a result of the tariff.

The per capita consumption of meats in this country is 67 per cent larger than in Great Britain, France, Germany or Belgium. The consumption of butter and sugar is about 50 per cent larger. The American people eat practically twice as many eggs per capita as the people of Great Britain. The people here consume food luxuries which are unknown to the wage earners in Europe. These are not included in the figures showing that the per capita consumption of food in the United States is far greater than in the leading countries of Europe.

Were the consuming power of the American people reduced by lower wages and lower living conditions an enormous mass of American foodstuffs would be unsalable, entailing tremendous loss to American producers. The surplus for export would be doubled, and prices would decline.

It would appear from these facts that the farmers can not afford to place in either house of Congress men who will deliberately depress the price of farm products by lowering the consuming and purchasing power of the wage earners in the industrial centers.

The value of the foreign market to the American farmer is overestimated. There is a very intimate relation between the American market and prices of farm products. Prices of farm products were lowest in 1921, yet exports were largest in volume. Ever since 1921 the price level of most farm products has been on the up grade, and food exports have decreased. The reason is the revival of industrial prosperity and increased demand for food in the United States.

FINANCING HIGHWAYS.

The total expenditures by State highway departments in 1925 for road and bridge construction was more than $649,121,000. Of this total expenditure 59.6 per cent was spent for construction, 18.4 per cent for maintenance and 3.5 per cent for materials and equipment. Administrative and engineering costs were 4.7 per cent, interest and principal payments on bonds 7.8 per cent and miscellaneous 6 per cent.

The total amount received to meet these expenses was $780,081,000, of which $115,556,000 was available as a balance from the previous year. Only $664,424,000 was received during the year. Of this amount 43.5 per cent came from motor vehicle license fees and gasoline taxes, 13.9 per cent from the government, 10.8 per cent from counties and other local governments, and the balance from special highway taxes and special appropriations.

One of the remarkable features of highway financing in 1925 was the large revenue from motor vehicle and gasoline taxes, and the falling off of the amounts received from real and personal property taxes. In 1921 the total amount received from motor vehicle and gasoline taxes was 25.9 per cent of the whole; last year it was 43.5 per cent of the whole. Income from real and personal taxes has declined from 20.7 per cent to 10.5 per cent of the whole amount received.

AMMUNITION DEPOTS.

The Lake Denmark naval arsenal explosion last summer apparently served at least one good end, that of demonstrating to naval officials the folly of locating such dangerous depots near human habitations. The court of inquiry acting after the disaster, it may be remembered, recommended that two ammunition dumps be maintained, one on the East coast and the other on the West coast within 1,000 miles of the seaboard. To meet this recommendation an additional ammunition depot will be constructed somewhere in the West.

The Interior Department announced yesterday that an executive order had been issued withdrawing from settlement 100,000 acres of land in Mineral county, Nevada, for consideration as the site of the Western depot. Mineral county lies in the southwestern part of Nevada, between Lyon and Esmeralda counties, on the California State line. The area set aside lies on Walker lake, about 75 miles southeast of Carson City. There is no town within ten miles of the site.

Apparently this territory fulfills the requirements the public expects to have observed in locating the Western ammunition depot. From the standpoint of defense, it is sufficiently removed from the sea as to make danger of attack in war time remote. Apparently it is set down in the midst of a wilderness, which would minimize the consequences of possible disaster. Although there may be found an equally or even more desirable area which will be chosen in preference to the Mineral county site, the public will be gratified to know that in any event the possibility of a disaster similar to that at Lake Denmark is to be avoided.

THE BRITISH COAL STRIKE.

The British coal strike was six months in being yesterday, and the loss, inconvenience and suffering that it has directly and indirectly caused would be impossible to estimate. As both the operators and the miners, as well as the government itself, have been unable to put forward any acceptable proposals to bring the strike to an end, some of the leading business men of Britain, appalled by the grave economic depression which already hangs over their country and which threatens to become still graver, are reported to have taken the matter in hand in the hope of succeeding where others have failed. It has been suggested that a private loan should be floated through the Bank of England for a virtual subsidy of the mining industry to tide it over the crisis, and it would seem that within the last few days pourparlers have taken place with that object in view.

Apart from the relief which Britain might legitimately expect from any method which would set the coal mines to working full blast once more, the international situation would be greatly eased by a resumption of work there on a normal basis. Various European continental centers report that a fuel famine is rapidly spreading as the result of the British strike. Because of the failure of the usual supply of British coal to France and the exportation of French bunker coal for use in British ships, the French iron and steel mills near the Atlantic coast were forced last month to fall back on their reserve stocks. Similarly, British demand for German coal has reduced the quantity sent from the Ruhr to other European countries. Austria fears that, unless coal deliveries can be increased, passenger traffic on the railroads will have to be cut down, especially as there are now only 40,000 tons available in Vienna. Belgium, too, is feeling the pinch.

The reactions of the British strike are being felt in the United States also. Bituminous coal jumped $1 a ton, to $8.75, a point not reached since 1920, in Pittsburgh on Wednesday; $1.50 a ton, to $10, in Portland, Maine, and $3 a ton, to $8.50, at the Hampton Roads piers. On that day there were 43 ships in Hampton Roads waiting their turn to load coal for Great Britain and other countries.

It will therefore be of advantage all around if the plan now under consideration for terminating the British coal strike should prove successful.

ABSENTEE VOTERS.

In a letter to The Post, former Senator Fred T. Dubois, of Idaho, calls attention to the difficulties which confront many citizens who desire to vote, but are unable to be present at the polls. Mr. Dubois also suggests a plan whereby it may be possible to help such absentee voters and thereby curtail the number of nonvoters by many thousands.

He points out that there are in the District of Columbia alone some hundred thousand men and women who are legal residents of the States and entitled to vote. Many of these citizens avail themselves of the "absentee voting laws" of their home States, but the greater number fail to do so because of the expense entailed by journeying to their homes for the purpose of registering, which is a prerequisite in every State. Aside from Michigan, every State requires personal registration if the would-be voter resides in a city, and many of the State laws require personal registration even in rural districts.

Mr. Dubois notes that nearly every State is represented by a society in Washington, devoted to social purposes. He suggests that these organizations should urge upon their respective legislatures the enactment of a law permitting the registration as well as the voting of such of its citizens as are compelled to be absent on the days designated for registration.

That such a law can be made effective and safe against abuse of the voting privilege has been proved by the case of Michigan. That State permits "absentee registration" if application is made to the proper official for the necessary blank prior to October 8 of each year, "except that in presidential years re-registration is required, which is good for four years.

Forty-five of the 48 States have election laws which extend the voting privilege to absentees from homes on election day. But these laws are by no means uniform, and as few of them, other than the Michigan statutes permit registration by mail or by proxy, it would seem that the time is ripe for a concerted effort on the part of State societies to initiate a movement to carry out the suggestion of Mr. Dubois.

As all absentee voters are required to furnish sworn statements as to their eligibility as voters there can be no good reason advanced why, through similar requirement, absentee registration should not be made equally easy. Such laws would enable nearly a million absentees to vote.

A TRADE SCOUT.

Another scout is to be dispatched abroad to find new markets for the products of American fields and farms. The first of these pioneers was sent out through northern Europe by "Tama Jim" Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture. The emissary was familiarly known throughout the West as "Johnnycake" Murphy, because his mission was to teach the people of northern Europe the delights of corn bread, corn pone, corn batter cakes and other delicacies of which corn meal is the component part. Murphy's mission was not a brilliant success and the export of corn products to the countries bordering on the Zulzer Zee and the North Sea showed no marked increase as the result of his missionary work.

But since the days of "Tama Jim" and "Johnnycake" Murphy there has been a decided change in the character of American exports to the Orient, and it is to Cathay that Secretary Jardine is sending the latest commercial missionary. He is Paul J. Mylus, of Wisconsin, and he will devote the next two years to a study of the Oriental markets with the view of learning how best to increase the demand by China and Japan for American tobacco, cotton and wheat, as well as dried fruits, pears and apples from the orchards of the Pacific States. It will surprise many persons to learn that China took more wheat from the United States in 1923-24 than did England, and that since the war Japan has become one of the leading markets for American cotton. China also is one of the best customers for American cigarettes, having purchased no fewer than 5,600,000,000 "fags" during 1925, which was five and a half times the number exported to the Chinese in 1912.

But the chance to increase the sale of cotton is the prime inducement for sending a scout to the Orient. Japan is rapidly increasing her spinning industry. Last year her spinners consumed 3,000,000 bales of raw cotton, of which one-third was the product of the cotton fields of the Southern States. Mr. Mylus, before sailing, will consult the cooperative associations and others interested in the foreign field, with the view to aiding them in capturing more of the Oriental business.

DISTRICT NATIONAL GUARD.

The Merchants and Manufacturers association will take up with the special congressional committee investigating District affairs the matter of provision by Congress of a proper armory for the District of Columbia National Guard. Many of the small towns surrounding Washington are provided with armories, whereas the District's citizen soldiers are forced to drill in the streets and upon a cinder-covered lot, and to house their equipment in a few small rooms in one of the government hotels. Until recently the guard had barely adequate quarters in L street, next to Convention hall. Since the sale of this property, however, the organization has been homeless.

Every State, with the exception of Nevada, maintains a national guard organization. Composed of men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, the training in general is the same as that prescribed for the regular army. These bodies of men are trained throughout the year, usually by weekly drills at their home armories, supplemented by two weeks' training in the summer at government training camps.

When disaster overtook Florida the guard took a prominent place in rescue and relief work. When civil disorder broke out in Illinois the guard got the situation under control. Always one of the main dependencies and nucleus organizations in time of national emergency, the guard has demonstrated its efficiency and value time and time again in State and local disturbances. In addition great benefit accrues to society in giving this fine mental and physical training to young men.

The District guard is handicapped severely in having no home. Not only is it impossible to hold drills under satisfactory conditions, but the officers of the organization find it hard to work up enthusiasm and establish an esprit de corps in an organization apparently regarded as an orphan. It is to be hoped that the Merchants and Manufacturers association will enlist the active support of the committee in urging Congress to provide suitably for the District national guard.

HIGH WAGES.

Although President Coolidge's address to the American Association of Advertising Agencies related primarily to matters in which that body had an especial interest, he diverted here and there to discuss general issues in which the country at large has a vital concern. It was not designed to be a strictly political speech, but there were some portions of it that should be studied by voters everywhere. It was broadcast over several important stations, and millions of men who will go to the polls next Tuesday listened in on what the President had to say. Here is a statement pertinent to present conditions and most timely:

It is our high rate of wages which brings about the greatest distribution of wealth the world has ever seen and provides the enormous capacity for the consumption of all kinds of commodities which characterize our country.

President Coolidge wants those conditions to continue; were they to pass, hard times and suffering would follow, in which millions of workmen and salaried people would be the chief victims. After briefly depicting the situation as it exists today with respect to American trade and commerce, both foreign and domestic, Mr. Coolidge added significantly:

But nothing would appear to be plainer than that this all depends upon the maintenance of our American scale of wages, which is the main support of our home market.

That, in a nutshell, is the situation that confronts the voter as he goes to the polls next Tuesday. If high wages have been the inestimable boon to labor that present conditions indicate, is the wage earner willing to vote for a backward turn in industrial life with all the personal hardships that may ensue? He can answer that question with his ballot.

The Gloomy Dean thinks Britain a goner, but all through his lifetime she has tottered from one triumph to another.

Now that straw hats are gone, about the only exercise the office man gets is in running for a street car.

By all means take the farm problem out of politics. Then it will be forgotten, like the tariff and prohibition.

PRESS COMMENT.

May Turn Pro.

Detroit News: The Red Sox have taken on a couple of new ball-players, and there is some talk now about the team turning professional.

Lowden's Position.

Ohio State Journal: As we understand Mr. Lowden's position, it is that in the interest of justice to all we ought to do something to round up the farmers' vote in the West without doing anything to hurt the feelings of the prominent campaign contributors of the East.

Famous Ladies.

Trenton State Gazette: "Hamp-tonian Princess," of Norfolk, Va., takes her place with Gertrude Ederle, Mile. Gade, Suzanne Lenglen and the rest of the champions among the gentler sex. The princess, a Plymouth rock hen, established a world record by laying 329 eggs in a year.

Why Kansans Migrate.

Atchison Daily Globe: That Kansans migrate to California is no reflection on Kansas. It merely shows the Kansas stock. The original Kansas nucleus came here from New England, descendants of a hardy race of pioneers. It is as natural for Kansans to hunt out new wildernesses to conquer and new places to civilize as it is for a duck to swim.

A Good Example.

Charlotte Observer: Chief Justice Taft, of the Supreme Court, has set an example that lower courts in every State might do well to follow. The Chief Justice has been not unmindful of the delays of the law in making disposition of criminal cases he is determined that his court will institute a policy of short shrift. He states that in future no delay will be countenanced in disposal of cases of this kind, and to make good his word has advanced as many as eighteen such cases on the Supreme Court docket. More expedition by the courts should be the order of the day throughout the nation.

He Doesn't Count!

Chicago Journal: Time was when Massachusetts stood for issues of principle and policy, and because she did so some of the most glorious pages in American history were written. To say now that the real issues of this campaign are to be ignored and that the voters are to shut their eyes and vote simply on the question of whether or not former Senator Walsh or President Coolidge is the more popular man in the Bay State is to impeach the intelligence of the least intelligent voter in a State which justly boasts of a long line of intellectual men who have profoundly influenced the course of America from the beginning. It reduces the campaign to the level of a beauty contest. It makes the President a leading figure in a campaign from which he has at least pretended to keep aloof. It makes of Senator Butler even a sorrier figure than he cuts in the Senate.

Football and War.

Baltimore Sun: Football may be much more than a sport. The Navy asserts that the Army last year had several movie films of Navy games and analyzed the plays in slow-motion presentations to their own great advantage. This, of course, is what any military body would like to do to the maneuvers of a prospective enemy, and the Army merely displayed its professional zeal. And the Navy's reply should be to let the enemy learn its plans and then change the plans. But

Flirting Benedicts

By ROBERT QUILEN.

This editorial deals in generalities. Like all such, it fails to fit particular cases. Those offended by it, if any, are privileged to fold the paper to a size approximately 4 by 5 inches and chew it vigorously.

Comparatively few married men are above flirting. Those who flirt seldom start anything until some inner voice or intuition tells them that the lady in the case will not call the police.

The lady, if she is that kind of a lady, and if the benedict is presentable, enjoys the flirtation from the start. It is an adventure, and her vanity assures her that she has made a conquest.

Let the man lie as he will, the lady quickly discovers that he is married. He has about him a bad-boy-being-truant air that single men never have.

In one particular, however, the lady fails to see the truth. When in the course of time the man assures her that he loves her, vanity prompts her to believe him. She should not, for he is a cock-eyed liar.

And here is the way and the wherefore of it. He, in common with all men, uses his wife as a standard. A man says of another woman—says to himself: "She is stouter than my wife;" or, "She is prettier than my wife." Always his wife is the gauge used in measurement.

He delights in the fact that his wife is good—that she is loyal and fine and pure in heart. If he didn't think her good, he wouldn't live with her—not the average man.

Well, he compares this flirting lady with his wife and he says to himself: "If she will flirt with me, she would flirt with other men. And she isn't any too good, or she wouldn't be flirting with a married man, anyway. Of course, I get a kick out of being with her, but thank heaven I'm not tied to her!"

That's the way they feel, and that's the way they have a right to feel. A man never looks for a superior to be a partner in his cussedness. He always reaches down. He only looks for a superior when he is intent on matrimony.

TURKEY'S MONTE CARLO.

For a generation terror and mystery brooded over Yildiz Kiosk, the "Star Pavilion" and a star of ill-omen for the Nearer East, says the London Times. Within the marble pavilion, on the hillside above the Bosphorus, for those 30 years dwelt Sultan Abdul Hamid.

Abdul Hamid died a prisoner; the last of the caliphs is an exile; Constantinople, shorn of her glories, has yielded pride of place to Angora, and the president-dictator of the Turkish empire does not trouble to visit the city which he dislikes and the citizens whom he despises. But he has had an impulse of contemptuous lenity. The municipality of Constantinople lacks revenues; well, let it convert Yildiz Kiosk into a gambling house and see what it can do. And so Yildiz becomes a casino, which the grateful Byzantines will perhaps call Monte Kemal, managed by an Italian concessionaire, a magnet for the gamblers of East and West. No expense, we gather, has been spared. The palace has been lavishly redecorated; jazz bands will, of course, play for hire; and Charlesons where "Arab izet" hatched his intrigues, where Ahmed Jellaleddin, chief of the spies, conferred with his master, and where the Kaiser walked and talked with the Caliph of Islam.

The municipality and the concessionaire are optimistic; the adventurers and adventurers of the Levant must be delighted at the prospect of an early invasion of profuse strangers; retired bandits without the city are no doubt as cheerful at the prospect of a revival of business as are the hotelkeepers within. Whether the "old Turks," or the religious Moslems who abhor gambling, or those who are responsible for the education of the new Turkish youth, are equally happy is another story. Some of them will consider it the unkindest of all insults that forward Angora has leveled against her former mistress, and will ask if this is to be the end of "all the glories" of Istanbul.

Prosperous Railroads.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: The railroads continue to make gains. In September they had another good month, better even than last August, and with earnings many millions greater than those of September, 1925. If the last quarter of 1926 maintains the level of prosperity, this will be the most prosperous year in the history of American railroading. It is possible that the grand total of carloadings for the year will show an average of a million cars a week. The extraordinary records so far made during the year have been reached in spite of a growing motor truck and water competition.

The absence of strikes and the rail efficiency reached since the war have been factors in the rail-showing for the year. Net rail income for 1926 should be most satisfactory on most of the lines, but next year their operating expenses are likely to be higher. The wage demands now being considered may be a factor then.

INDIAN SUMMER.

By STEPHEN B. STANTON.

The aged summer gently dies. The dreaming air its soul receives; Upon the woodland carpet lies Its catastrophe of fallen leaves.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Defamers of Great Men.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to express my appreciation of your admirable editorial concerning George Washington in The Post of October 20.

Will the muck-rakers leave us no great statesmen, heroes or intellectual giants to whom the youth of our land may be pointed as fine and noble examples?

Surely the men who traduce the characters of Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, Franklin and others who have made our country great, respected and beloved are in a most contemptible business.

When men have been resting in honored graves for more than a century, when there is not one of their contemporaries to rise in their defense, only a coward would defame their memory by searching for petty human frailties and magnifying them to overshadow their glorious accomplishments.

LILA RIPLEY BARNWELL.
Hendersonville, N. C., Oct. 23.

America Should Not Disarm.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Is the city of New York adequately defended? Have you ever considered the tremendous target which it offers to an enemy's attack? It would be impossible to miss such a mark. It is close to the sea; it is almost as high and wide as a mountain; and it is as destructible, for modern artillery, as a glass house or a china shop. A single first-class enemy ship could destroy the city on Manhattan island in half an hour from a distance of 20 miles.

Each high-explosive shell would pass clean through the skyscrapers, and blow them into ruins of twisted steel and shattered concrete; and every shot would cost us thousands of lives and millions of dollars. An attack from the air might be even more disastrous. The city of New York is the heart of America, and should be defended as men defend their own hearts. The approach of an enemy to within striking distance, by sea or air, should be made impossible.

BERTRAND SHADWELL.
Los Angeles, Oct. 21.

Going Home to Vote.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just a word about government employees going home to vote.

There are many government employees who would go home to cast their vote, but the trouble is that they have no annual leave. The internal revenue bureau allows its employees only ten days' sick leave, while employees in other departments of the government service are allowed 30 days for the same purpose. For this reason many clerks in the bureau of internal revenue are compelled to use annual leave for sickness.

If the President would issue an order authorizing employees of the bureau of internal revenue and any other bureau or department of the government so situated to take leave without pay for the purpose of going to their respective homes to vote, a great many such employees would gladly avail themselves of the privilege. The majority of the departments are very strict about the question of leave without pay and will not grant it except in very rare instances. A number of clerks did just days of annual leave for the purpose, and now find that they have no time to cover the actual voting.

We hope that the President will see his way clear to issue such an order for both men and women.

DISEASE AND SNOW SPREADING TERROR IN QUAKE-TORN AREA

Packs of Wolves Also Invasive
Armenia While Refugees
Vainly Seek Help.

DEAD PLACED AT 1,500;
SHOCKS ARE CONTINUING

Food Shortage Termed Acute;
Fountains of Hot Water
Pour From Earth.

Leninakan, Armenia, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Indescribable desolation, made more acute by the spread of malaria, influenza and other diseases, prevails in the earthquake zone of Armenia where recurring earthquakes and loud subterranean rumblings have kept the population in a state of panic and despair for the past seven days and nights. Government and Near East relief reports, which have been trickling in for the past few days, reveal that the casualties of the week's great earthquake will be higher than at first thought. The villages of Alexandrovka, Daharlu and Karaklissa alone had 152 persons buried in the ruins and 219 badly injured. If the same proportion of deaths prevails in the other 34 devastated villages, the total loss of life will exceed 1,500 as against the 600 first reported.

No estimate has been made of the fatalities in towns beyond the Armenian-Turkish border although the loss of life and property is known to be very great. "Horrible" is the way the situation in Turkish-Armenia was described by a telegraph operator at Kars.

Like the Smyrna Disaster. A correspondent for the Associated Press, who has passed two days in the stricken area, found conditions comparable only to the terrible scenes of the Smyrna fire disaster of 1923, which he also witnessed.

Long caravans of hand-picked, limping peasants make their way haltingly over the broken roads searching for new abodes, reluctant to begin the work of restoring their ruined homes because of the recurring earthquakes which all them with fear of a new calamity. Wagons, donkeys, horses, piled high with people, furniture and bedding form a mournful cavalcade as the natives wander from one village to another in search of succor.

Frenzied mothers were observed carrying dead babies in their arms, refusing to believe that life had left the frail bodies. Snow and bitter cold, prevailing in the mountains, has driven packs of famished wolves to the plains, where they have devoured the carcasses of cattle and even human bodies caught in the ruins.

Great Fissures Everywhere.

Great fissures are visible everywhere in the mountainside while the plains are marked by zigzag crevices. In some places the whole configuration of the earth has been changed. Great fountains of superheated sulphur water is issuing from the earth in many places.

There is still a grave food shortage. Today the Near East Relief turned over its huge bakery, built to supply the 9,000 orphans under its care, to the local government in an effort to alleviate the sufferings. With the spread of disease, the American and native doctors in the stricken area are overwhelmed.

The Associated Press correspondent was stopped by many Armenians, who told of relatives living in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Los Angeles. Taking old letters with American postmarks from their pockets, they asked plaintively: "Can you inform our relatives in America of our plight?"

30,000 Houses Destroyed.

The government estimates that at least 30,000 houses were destroyed in the quake zone.

The quake has brought almost as great affliction on Armenia as all the preceding years of wars, revolutions, famines, epidemics and massacres together.

"That is my fifth home," said an old woman as she pointed to a heap of crumbled stone. "They were all destroyed. Why is God so hard on Armenia?"

U. S. JURY CONVICTS 2 OF KILLING OSAGE

ment of Justice agents worked for months apparently without progress. Then came the arrest of the cattle baron, his nephew, Ernest Burkhardt, and Ramsey.

Before being taken over by Federal authorities, Hale and Ramsey were held on a State charge of murder in connection with the death of W. E. Smith, who, with his Indian wife and a servant girl, were killed in an explosion which demolished the Smith home. Smith's Indian wife was a member of a wealthy Osage family, which it was charged, Hale plotted to wipe out in order to come into their wealth.

Ernest Burkhardt pleaded guilty to a murder charge in connection with the dynamiting of the Smith home and named his uncle, Hale, as the instigator. Burkhardt is serving a life sentence.

The government claimed jurisdiction in the Roan case on the ground he was slain on Indian property. At the first trial of Hale and Ramsey, several months ago, the jury disagreed.

Ramsey, in a confession to United States agents, stated that he lured Roan to a pasture and shot him to death at the behest of Hale, who was to pay him $500 and give him an automobile. At the trial Ramsey repudiated the confession.

Witnesses at the first trial were afraid to talk, but their stories gradually unfolded as they gained confidence. Hale's attorney announced their intention of appealing.

MASON GOT $23,000 FOR WINE PERMITS

congregations. The amount at first was $300 for a 2,000-gallon permit, but later was increased, upon Mason's suggestion, to $400 for the same amount, Stone said.

The collections represented graft and the amount of wine illegally released was more than 1,000,000 gallons, the government contends. Testimony previously was adduced to show that through an arrangement with Maj. Owen, Harry R. Schiau, friend of Maj. Owen for twenty years, and Lewis Abelson, "outside man," had been collecting $300 for each 2,000-gallon permit, the money being divided with Owen by Schiau. Stone testified today that he told some of the wine distributors that he could perform the same service for them at the rate of 3 cents a gallon. Senator Mason suggested, however, that since the distributors had been paying 15 cents a gallon, Stone might as well collect that amount also, the witness testified, Mason later telling him to raise the "ante" to $400. After that system was inaugurated additional wine distributors came in, he said.

Stone asserted he never had asked Owen for any favor or especial consideration from the prohibition officers. He said $7,000 given to the two prohibition agents, Bernard Rumps and A. E. Bennett, were in the nature of tips, and was not intended to influence them.

Bennett testified today that he knew the wine dealers were willing to pay to have a permit approved, but that his only instructions from Maj. Owen were to be careful and sure that all the congregations they O. K'd were legitimate.

At adjournment this afternoon until next Wednesday morning Senator Mason lost his wish that the trial be completed, or he at least have opportunity to present his defense before the State election next Tuesday. He requested an early trial, stating he wished to go before his electorate with a clean slate.

WARNED OF ATTACK, BIRGER GANG FLEES

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Announcing he had received a warning that he was to be "framed" by enemy gangsters from St. Louis, Charles Birger, gang leader, left Harrisburg today with six automobiles loaded with gangsters. They were headed toward Birger's resort, 12 miles west of here, on the road to Marion.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Earl Shelton, 32, one of the three Shelton brothers who have been serving terms in Williamson county for years, announced from his sickbed here today that the Sheltons were out of the county to stay. He has been ill of malarial fever for three weeks and is at the home of a friend.

"Williamson county need not fear any reprisals from the Shelton brothers and should take Charley Birger's tale as so much hot air. We are not going back to Williamson. There is too much shooting around there, and we invariably get the blame for all of it."

Mencken Advised To Move to Russia

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, president general of the D. A. R., in an address before the Charlotte D. A. R., here tonight, took sharp exception to the recently reported statement of Henry L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, that he considers "Lenin worth ten thousand Coolidges."

Mrs. Brosseau said: "Roughly speaking, I should say one Calvin Coolidge is worth ten thousand Lenins, and his kind. For such as he one feels justified in recommending a prolonged residence in the country which Lenin inhabited to devastate and render uninhabitable."

Son Shot as Parents Decorate for Party

The home of Charles E. Creasy in Aurora Heights, Va., was being made ready for Halloween last night. While Creasy and his wife were decorating the parlor, a shot sounded and they turned to see their 7-year-old son, James, fall with a bullet wound in his right shoulder.

According to the story told police, the shot was fired accidentally by James Durling, 17 years old, a neighbor. He had found the revolver on a table in the Creasy parlor and while examining it happened to touch the trigger. The boy was taken to Georgetown University hospital by his father. His condition was not regarded as serious.

William Seward Webb, Railway Builder, Dies

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Dr. William Seward Webb, retired railroad builder and capitalist, died today at his home in Shelburne. He was 75 years old. He was the builder and a former president of the Mohawk & Malone railroad and a director of the Pullman Co., Central Vermont railroad, and other transportation companies.

Food Show Wedding Couple Is Selected

The principals have been selected for the wedding to feature the opening night of the annual food show in the Washington auditorium, it was announced yesterday. The couple will be furnished with groceries and furniture. A string band with play the wedding march.

Ramsey, in a confession to United States agents, stated that he lured Roan to a pasture and shot him to death at the behest of Hale, who was to pay him $500 and give him an automobile. At the trial Ramsey repudiated the confession.

Witnesses at the first trial were afraid to talk, but their stories gradually unfolded as they gained confidence. Hale's attorney announced their intention of appealing.

The Housekeeper

WE have already planned our menu for tonight, which is Halloween, and we shall therefore today take up the matter of Sunday dinner. Since the cold weather has come the baking of pie will not seem an undertaking any more, nor will a beef tongue seem too much of a meal to suit our appetite. The recipe for beef tongue that I shall give today is one that was sent to us some months ago by a reader. It is an excellent dinner dish and allows for cold tongue on the morrow if a sufficiently large tongue be purchased to last for two days. With cold tongue any number of warm dishes may be used, baked dishes that form the body of the meal, or delicious hot bread that takes the place of a hot meat both in effort and warm dish effect. Let us therefore plan for Monday as well as Sunday in considering a tongue, and buy vegetables that will hold over to the following day without an extra trip or extra ordering again on Monday.

Indeed there are ways and means of disposing of leftover milk that has soured, Mrs. Greenway. But I suspect that you are allowing your milkman to leave more than your household requires. If, however, the sour milk is only an occasional thing, use it up in baking. There are a number of good recipes we are able to give you for its use and we shall give one or two of them today.

Baked Tongue With Vegetable Sauce.

Place a whole tongue in a kettle, cover with boiling water and skim several times. Then add salt and pepper, one-third of a cup of carrots, celery cut in dice, a sprig of parsley, and boil slowly until tender, which is about two hours. Remove the tongue from the kettle and cut away the root and skin. Cut in halves lengthwise and place in a deep pan, surround with three cups of sauce in which the tongue was boiled and one cup of strained or stewed tomatoes. Add the carrots, celery and onion mashed finely with pork. Bake one hour, turning at the end of the first half hour. Thicken the sauce with a little flour. This can either be served on a platter surrounded with the sauce or garnished with thinly sliced cucumber and cold sliced beets and the sauce served separately in a sauce boat.

For a large family a whole beef tongue can be used, whereas for a small family calves tongue is very delicious, and correspondingly for the smaller tongues fewer vegetables are required to be added for the sauce.

Now a suggestion on Monday's left-over meat.

Monday's Supper.
Cold Sliced Tongue
Baked Hominy Grits
Cabbage and Apple Salad
Hot Bisquit
Egyptian cake
Coffee or tea

Baked Hominy Grits.

One small cup hominy grits, 1 large tablespoonful butter, 3 eggs and 1½ cups sweet milk. Into a pint of salted boiling water stir hominy and cook for about an hour. Remove from the fire and add the other ingredients, well beaten together. Pour into a buttered casserole dish and bake in a slow oven for an hour. Serve immediately.

Egyptian Cake.

(Delicious)
One-third cup chocolate, 4 eggs, half cup milk, 1 teaspoonful vanilla, 1 heaping teaspoonful baking powder, 1½ cups flour, 1½ cups sugar and half cup of butter. Dissolve the chocolate in five tablespoonfuls of boiling water, beat the butter to a cream and add the sugar gradually, beating all the while. Add the yolks of the eggs and beat again. Add the milk and then the melted chocolate and flour. Give the whole a vigorous beating, then add the well beaten egg whites carefully. Add the vanilla and baking powder, mix quickly and lightly and divide in three equal portions for three layers.

Nougat Filling for Cake.
One cup nut meats, cut fine; add to one egg yolk, beaten thick, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, half cup of whipped cream and the white of one egg, beaten very stiff. Add a dash of salt. Spread two layers of the cake generously with the filling. Coat the top and sides

Nancy Goes A-Shopping

Form information regarding the shops at which articles described in this column may be found, call Nancy Carey, The Washington Post, Main 4205, Branch 40.

1. Some time ago we spoke of the winter's table decoration and promised that we should keep an eye out for a suitable bowl or plant jar to place in the center of the table to hold the table fern. We have discovered one article to meet the requirement. It is of Italian ware delightfully constructed with a slightly fluted edge and of a soft green tone. There is a cream color worked into the design that harmonizes well with the shades of green, and the whole is of just the right size for the little fern that is quite satisfactory to take the place of the summer flowers. The ferns, if one has not already been purchased, may be had from 25 to 75 cents. The bowls to hold them are of genuine Italian pottery and there are a few only at 75 cents each.

2. We discovered, too, on this shopping trip, that all things lovely are not likewise expensive. Trays of hand-wrought iron that come from Europe are to be had that are sure to charm even the most fastidious. They are unusual in shape, have twisted or, if you like, coiled handles, and are in the natural dull finish. They are ornamented with little dots of Chinese red, and are of the flat type that may be used for serving beverages if the larger size is purchased, or for card trays, or even a base for smoking materials if the smaller ones attract the buyer. They are reasonably priced at $1.50 and $2. (An excellent gift.)

3. A reader has asked that if it be to our liking we search out an unusual and inexpensive ash receiver for a bridge prize. We take the liberty of publishing our finding in the column for the receptacle that we discovered is very unusual and quite cheap. It is of deep blue green glass, small, with a deep bowl. The unusual feature is that in the center is a tiny raised place containing a tiny hollow just the size of a cigarette. In this hollow one may, without difficulty, snub out the lighted cigarette that is to be put out and disposed of. It should be a convenience as well as a novelty and we do not hesitate to suggest this article for a bridge prize. They sell at 50 cents.

ROW AT PARIS ART SALE WORRIES U. S. EMBASSY

Arrival of Police Stirs Fear of Radical Attack When Pictures Are Assailed.

ALIEN WORK DISPLEASES

Paris, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—The American embassy had a few anxious moments today when a force of police and patrol wagons descended upon a crowd in the street nearby. At first it was feared that the hubbub might be a repercussion of the Sacco-Vanzetti case, but the excitement turned out to be caused by an argument over art.

When the tumult had died down seven more or less esthetic young Frenchmen were under arrest. They were attending an auction sale at a gallery opposite the American embassy for the benefit of the "save the franc fund" and became involved in a heated argument over works of foreign artists on display.

The first outcry was raised when a study of Anatole France, by the Dutch painter Van Donger, brought $5,000 francs (about $2,850).

"Ninety-five thousand francs for a piece of cheese," said one of the young men to his companions, all of whom described themselves as artists and men of letters.

Equally uncompromising remarks followed, when a small painting by the South American artist, Picasso, brought 75,000 francs.

A bit of futurism, by a Roumanian contributor, set the young men to making such a noise that the director of the sale called in the police, who carted the disturbers to the police station where they were reprimanded and released.

Defendant's Collapse Halts Trial of Morses

New York, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Glenhard S. Foster, of East Orange, N. J., one of the seventeen defendants in the Morse mail fraud trial, collapsed today in a taxi cab on the way from his home to the Federal building and the trial was postponed until Monday.

MAN DIES OF INJURIES RECEIVED IN COLLISION

Mrs. Charlotte E. Ross, running south on North Capitol street, skidded on the street car track in attempting to pass another car, and crashed into Knapp's automobile on the other side of the street, witnesses said.

Although both cars were damaged badly, Knapp and Ross were unharmed. Mrs. Ross received cuts on the head. She first was taken to the office of her father, Dr. J. D. Coblenz, 2 Florida avenue northwest, and later taken to Casualty hospital, where stitches were taken over her left eye and in her throat. She later returned to the home of her father.

Ross was taken immediately to the Second precinct station, where he is held pending the outcome of a coroner's inquest at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the death of Sheridan. He told police he was taking his wife to the home of Dr. Coblenz when the accident occurred. The wheels of his taxi caught in the street car tracks, he said, and in attempting to extricate them the cab skidded. Police who measured the marks said it skidded 87 feet into Knapp's car, which virtually was at a standstill.

QUEEN HAS BIRTHDAY LUNCHEON ON TRAIN

birthday, which dinners she had pictured to the newspaper correspondents at a chat earlier in the day.

Announcement was made on Queen Marie's train today that the queen definitely had decided she would be unable to visit California and the Southwest on her present tour.

The original California branch of the trip was cancelled when railroads there refused to join the others in a plan to move the special train for a nominal charge, but recently efforts have been made to reinstate the schedule.

Queen Marie today received the following birthday message from King Ferdinand: "Send you loving birthday wishes and greetings from Smala (royal palace) which is white with snow. I hope you had some days of real perfect rest. Feeling so well that I am going down town on Sunday. We are all extremely interested in the news from your journey, and I am utterly pleased at your success. I hope your cold has gone. Don't over-tire yourself. Fondest love from all."

At Capreol, 300 school children were greeted by the queen from the rear platform.

FALL-DOHENY TRIAL JANUARY 10 ASKED

Frank J. Hogan and Levi Cooke, counsel for Edward L. Doheny and former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, yesterday asked Associate Justice Hoehling to set January 10 as the date for the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial in the oil lease cases.

Owen J. Roberts, who, with Atlee Pomerene, is special counsel for the government, did not object to this date, but proposed earlier that the trial be started November 22. Justice Hoehling took the matter under advisement.

Mr. Hogan informed the court that he expected the case to take from six to eight weeks. Both the prosecution and the defense announced that they were ready for trial.

TAKOMA WATCHMAN WINS CARNEGIE HONOR

Pittsburgh, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—The Carnegie Hero Fund commission, in fall meeting here late today, recognized 24 acts of heroism by awarding 2 silver and 22 bronze medals, in addition to pensions aggregating $2,680 annually, and $14,600 for other worthy purposes. Five of the heroes cited lost their lives in the commission of heroic deeds.

The posthumous awards include one to Alexander F. Dunn, James street, Gaithersburg, Md., railroad crossing watchman, killed when he attempted to rescue a child from the path of a train at Takoma Park, D. C., February 8, 1926. His widow received a silver medal and benefits of $55 a month.

Other heroes honored include R. Barnett Hollingsworth, 123 Park avenue, Asheville, N. C., who saved a girl from being killed by a train at Bluff City, Tenn., May 11, 1924.

Honorary Degree to Taft.
Albany, N. Y., Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States, and Frank Harris Hitchcock, chief judge of the New York State court of appeals, were presented today with the honorary degree of doctor of laws by the State board of regents at the annual convocation of the University of the State of New York.

Although both cars were damaged badly, Knapp and Ross were unharmed. Mrs. Ross received cuts on the head. She first was taken to the office of her father, Dr. J. D. National Apple Week Begins This Morning

In all our stores you will find displays of wonderfully good apples—all the various kinds now available from the Pacific Coast States, as well as from all the surrounding states, which we designate as local or eastern grown.

In previous advertisements we have told you of the tremendous apple crop produced in the territory surrounding Washington. In a news item in Wednesday's Star was a description of a tree in southern Pennsylvania estimated to have forty (40) bushels hanging on its branches; in other words, about sixteen (16) barrels on one tree.

Now, this enormous crop has resulted in reducing apple prices to a point where they are hardly worth picking. In fact, only first-grade apples are bringing any money at all at the orchards. Labor, barrels, baskets, freight or hauling amounts to much more than the value of the apples at the tree.

Eat More Apples

The more apples you buy and consume, the more money the growers can realize.

Eat Apples Twice as Often

If every patron of the "Sanitary" will double his or her purchases of apples, you, as apple consumers, will permit the Eastern apple growers to market through this company 100,000 bushel baskets of fruit instead of about 50,000 bushels which is the present rate of consumption.

Other Years Are Coming

Growers who "go broke" this year for lack of a market will raise no apples next year. That's why we urge that you double your apple usage now. Next year you will want apples, too, and to buy at reasonable prices there must be apples plenty. In the last few years short-crop prices have been from two to three times present prices.

Help the grower—not this company—by doubling your use of apples.

WEST BROTHERS BRICK COMPANY

Wishes to announce, to its customers and the public, its business will continue as usual, as we have a large supply of brick on hand, and are confident production will be resumed before present stock is exhausted.

VIRTUES HOLD YOUTHS, ASSERTS LORD BISHOP

slave and left her a queen," was his way of driving this home.
 Bishop Ingram discussed the problem of coeducation and said that if men and women in educational institutions are Christian, there is no danger in such a system, but without it there is danger. He urged the future leaders of church and state before him to go out into the world and do real missionary work in their chosen professions.

He told his audience that in 900
 London police courts Christian missionaries regularly are detailed and were able to accomplish much good among the prisoners.

Wears Purple Cassock.

The bishop was attired in a long purple silk cassock and wore his bishop's cross at his neck, suspended from a long chain. He spoke a delightfully informal way interspersed his remarks with many anecdotes.

In presenting the Right Rev.
 James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, to the audience as the presiding officer of the meeting, dean William A. Wilbur, of George Washington university, called Bishop
 Freeman the friend of all Christian people in the community, and a man of good will. The invocation was offered by Chancellor Lucius
 C. Saltonstall, by Bishop Ingram, and the Scripture reading was by Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, of the University of Maryland. The George Washington University Glee club led the singing of the hymns, and the Rev. Wallace Radcliffe offered the benediction.

In his introduction of Bishop Ingram, Bishop Freeman said the distinguished prelate was a "lover of youth and exponent of truth."
 Bishop Freeman said he was not surprised that the young movement that he had found in the last few years a more ready response from youth than from their elders to Christian teachings.

The address was the sixteenth
 Bishop Ingram has made before colleges and universities of the United States since coming here less than a month ago.

On leaving Washington today he will make a tour of Southern and Western colleges for this purpose before sailing from San Francisco for the Orient late in November.

Ceremony in Morning.

Linking Washington cathedral with the first Anglican church in the United States, that of James town, Va., built in 1607, a brick from the chancel floor of Jamestown church was placed and hallowed in the fabric of the National Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul on Mt. St. Alban by Bishop Ingram with brief but impressive ceremonies earlier in the day.

The ceremony took place at 10
 a. m. and the spot selected for the insertion of the brick, which was presented by the Order of Jamestown, of the Order of the Eastern Star, through the courtesy of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, now owned by the city of Jamestown.
 The site of Jamestown church, was in one of the cathedral stones in the wall on the south wall of the apse.

The audience assembled in the apse consisted of members of the Order of James town, wives of clergy and students of St. Alban's School for Boys and the National Cathedral School for Girls, educational institutions connected with Washington Cathedral.

On his way to the apse Bishop Ingram, clad in full canonicals and wearing the scarlet hood of one of his degree, paused at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson, in Bethlehem chapel, and laid a wreath on it.
 The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, of the cathedral staff, was master of ceremonies.

The majority of the diocesan clergy were in the procession in the chapel service and the picture was an impressive one when these clergy lined up on the other side of the aisle to let the bishop of London and the bishop of Washington pass through on their way to the altar of Bethlehem chapel, where the communion service began.

Following the bricklaying ceremony the services were open to the public, in Bethlehem chapel.
 Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of President Wilson, was present.

Freeman Reads Service.

The communion service was read by Bishop Freeman, assisted by the Rt. Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, canon of Washington cathedral.
 When the time came for his sermon Bishop Ingram took his place on the altar steps instead of in the pulpit, and spoke easily and fluently to the congregation. He told first of his happy memories in returning again to Washington cathedral and said how pleased he had been to conduct the service at the cathedral construction in the nineteen years since he first had visited it and that he thought it would be one of the most beautiful cathedrals in the world when completed, and that he would ask his people of the diocese of London to pray for its speedy completion.

Bishop Ingram's sermon was very brief. He took his text from St.
 Jude—"Earnestly content for the faith once delivered to the saints" —and affirmed that this faith delivered to the Church was a definite and well-defined thing.
 "A dogma that can be questioned is not dogma at all," he said.
 "The Church must hold its faith in certain dogmas absolutely and completely."

At 12:30 p. m. Bishop Ingram was taken to the White House by Bishop Freeman, where he was presented to President Coolidge.
 Upon his return the bishop was the guest of honor at the luncheon in St. Alban's parish hall for visiting dignitaries and the diocesan clergy, at which the bishop and dean of Washington and the cathedral chapters were

M. MOROKIN AND BALLET
GIVE DRAMA IN DANCES

Elaborate Stage Settings and Costumes Enhance Work of Russian Entertainers.

MRS. COOLIDGE ATTENDS

Mikhail Mordkin and his Russian ballet of 50 gave two performances at the Washington auditorium yesterday. The matinee performance was attended by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who occupied a box with friends and was most generous in her applause of the dancers.

M. Morokin and his artists were presented by the Albaugh Bureau of America after an absence of some years and he was in the best of form yesterday. He was supported by Hilda Butsova, Vera Nemtchinova and Pierre Vladimiroff. Vladimir Bakelinkoff acted as conductor of the orchestra, which was quite adequate to the dancers and gave additional beauty to their work.

The stage settings and costumes of the ballet were elaborate and the carnival scene in the afternoon program was especially well mounted.

"Carnival," a choreographic episode, the work of Mordkin, with scenery and costumes designed by Boris Anisfeld, set to music of Liszt, Glazounoff, Moussorgsky and others, gave a chance to Mordkin to display his dancing powers and dramatic ability in the role of the hapless Pierrot.

The second portion of the afternoon program was given over to group dances and solo numbers. Another chore drama by Mordkin featured the evening program. It was called "Ariadne," with music especially composed by Joseph Gluck. Oriental color distinguished the ensemble and incidental dances of this number.

On the evening program was the celebrated Italian beggar dance by Mordkin. This dance was an innovation in the accepted ballet form, but now ranks with Pavlova's "Dying Swan" as a classic of the dance.

Another outstanding number of the evening program was "The Nightingale," a dance by Vera Nemtchinova. "The Souvenir of Russia" was an ensemble number which won continuous applause. In it Hilda Butsova and Pierre Vladimiroff starred.

Girl, 17, Is Arrested
On Bad Check Charge

After she is alleged to have passed worthless checks aggregating $250 at downtown stores, in order to obtain pretty clothing, Elizabeth Hardesty, 17 years old, known also as Elsie Weaver, of 447 G street northwest, was held at the House of Detention yesterday under one charge of grand larceny and six of false pretenses.

The girl was arrested by Headquarters Detectives Frank Varney and H. E. Brodie. A dress, said to have been stolen from a store, was found in her room, the detectives said. Denying the charges vehemently at first, police say she later confessed and said she had run away from her home in Upper Marlboro, Md.

"The character of service rendered by them is much higher than that rendered by employees elsewhere," he said.

PHONE RATE CASE HITS
SNAG IN EQUITY COURT

Stephens Directed to File Brief in Controversy of Commission and Company.

IN SUPPORT OF MOTION

The telephone rate controversy between the public utilities commission and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. struck another snag yesterday in equity court, when Chief Justice McCoy directed Corporation Counsel Francis H. Stephens to file a brief in support of his motion for a modification of the injunction order of June 10, 1925.

The injunction served to suspend an order of the commission calling for a reduction in rates for unlimited telephones from $5 to $4.75 a month and an increase in calls on limited telephones from 35 to 40 a month. The reduction was based on a valuation of $18,576,956, to which the telephone company objected with the statement that its properties were worth more than $25,000,000.

When the commission first applied for a modification of the injunction order the court was not satisfied with the showing made in support of the allegation that the operating expenses of the company had declined sufficiently to warrant new hearings to reduce rates. The modification plea was denied, and the commission was instructed to be more definite and specific. An amended motion was filed and was met by the company with the contention that it contained no more facts than did the first motion.

Attorneys Hoover and Devane, counsel for the company, made the same objections to the amended motion as they did when the first motion was heard, and they again put forth their plea that new complications should be added by new hearings when the controversy over the rate reduction, which was prevented by the injunction order, still was before the court for settlement.

A Most Sensational Sell-Out of Over 100 Used Cars—Don't Miss It!

Cost Forgotten! STANLEY H. HORNER

Takes a Tremendous Loss to Sell Entire Stock of Used Cars as Quickly as Possible

Read Mr. Horner's Statement to You

A recent survey of business conditions, and the fact that we are very much overstocked with a big lot of fine used cars, and that we need the room in order to take more used cars in trade on the new Buicks has caused us to take immediate and drastic action in disposing of our entire big stock of used cars as quickly as possible.

We are very frank to have you know that we are obliged to take the accompanying losses that the enforced marketing of these fine cars entails.

With this in view we have gone much further in price-cutting than the present used car market justifies. It is our expressed purpose and determined intention to make this sale the greatest money-saving event for you in our business career.

As we realize that it is a big job to sell out this large stock of fine used cars quickly we sent for Mr. F. Joswich, the well known automobile merchandising expert. We have given Mr. Joswich full charge of this immense sale and complete authority to go the limit.

You have our word there will be no fake or bombast here. If you buy a used car from us you buy a car that will give you good service. It has always been our aim and policy to give the buyer the very best value for his money.

We can arrange terms to suit you.

Yours truly,
Stanley H. Horner.

I Am Here to Save You Money

I came over 800 miles to do you a good turn here, folks—but only after Mr. Stanley H. Horner, President of the Stanley H. Horner Corporation, had answered "Yes" to each of the following questions:

1—Are your cars all in good mechanical condition, having been gone over and tested by your skilled mechanics?

2—Are you willing to let me slaughter prices to meet present conditions and make it worth while for the public to buy?

3—Are you ready to take a total loss of profit on your entire stock of used cars and let me advertise them widely and truthfully?

The above questions being answered in the affirmative, I came—I investigated, and, like a satisfied, delighted man, I smiled—and who wouldn't when you have such a good opportunity to bring joy and cheer to so many people.

If you will read carefully this advertisement you will see what remarkable—what wonderful bargains these cars are and how unmercifully I have cut the price with never a thought of cost. I have smashed prices on these fine cars as they have never been smashed before and will save you more dollars than you ever believed possible.

Remember, every car we have in this big sale is in good mechanical condition, having been gone over and tested by a skilled mechanic. Some of them are practically new. You sure can, in this large selection of good used cars, find the car of your choice.

We will be ready at all times to demonstrate any car in this sale to you.

Come early to this automobile slaughter and compare the prices and when you have figured the saving on your purchase you will be glad that I came here bargain-hunting for you and the good people of Washington.

Yours very truly,
F. JOSWICH, Sales Expert,
Chicago, Ill.

SECOND LOVE

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY EUGENE MACLEAN

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

John Parrish and his rich young wife, Audrey, have separated, because of his wealth which frequent references to his own dependence upon her wealth. He is living at a hotel; she has gone to Bitter Springs, a mountain resort, to wait for her father who is hurrying home from London. She has left her home in charge of her housekeeper, young, beautiful, believing in the right of women to do as they please. She has been put out of her own home because of her advanced ideas. She makes love to Parrish's housekeeper, and is in love with him. He accuses her of being a flirt. Two of her boy friends appear, and Parrish leaves. Marie takes three quarts of liquor from Audrey's father's cellar, and goes to a dance with the boys. She returns at 3 a. m. and goes to bed with her hat on.

3000 GO ON WITH THE STORY.

(Names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXI.

THE morning came, and went. At midday the downstairs maid ascended to the upper floor, and listened at Marie's door. "She's moving around," the girl reported to the cook, as she returned to her own domain. "Better get breakfast ready."

Marie appeared half an hour later. She was neat and carefully coiffured, but her eyes were heavy, and her cheeks had lost a trifle of their warm color.

"Just some coffee and toast," she said, as she took her seat in the breakfast room.

The maid rolled her eyes significantly at the cook as she conveyed the order. Almost at once she returned with the coffee percolator, which she set on a pad beside Marie, connecting the cord with an electric socket. The big silver vessel was steaming—it had been in operation since 8 o'clock.

Marie drew a cupful of the fragrant fluid, and drank it, without cream or sugar. After a nibble of toast she drew another cup.

"Are there any orders for dinner, miss?" asked the maid.

Marie drew her hand over her forehead.

"My goodness, I can't think," she said. "I'll just have something cold ready. Then if I eat at home, I can have it. See?"

She returned to her toast, and tried another bite. Then she laid aside the remainder with disgust.

Taking a final gulp of coffee, she rose and returned to her own room. Slipping off her dress, and pulling a robe around her shoulders, she lay down and slept again.

It was a different Marie who came down stairs at 5 o'clock. Refreshed and invigorated, she moved through the hall with dancing step, and she sang a little. Her eyes were bright, the deep color had been restored to her cheeks, and her movements were alert.

"I'm hungry," she said, putting her head in the kitchen door. "Is there enough here for a great big dinner?"

An indignant retort arose from the cook, and Marie pulled the door wider.

"I can't be mad at me," she urged. "I know I said I wanted a cold dinner—but you can fix something nice and juicy and warm, can't you?"

The cook responded less heatedly. "All right, miss, with gravy. You're a dear."

Leaving peace behind her, she went to the front lawn, and settled herself in Audrey's wicker chair.

A soft June breeze was moving the leaves of the tree overhead, and Marie sighed with content. She was dressed in a gold-colored slip, with a rose-tinted, transparent dress over it. Her stockings were sheer and golden, and her slippers were of yellow kid.

Stretching her foot before her, she surveyed her leg from the knee down.

"I'm cute," she said to herself, aloud, and leaned back, her hands locked behind her head.

She was there when Bill and his friend found her, half an hour later.

"We've come after some more of that booze," said Bill, tramping upon the flowerbed that lay between the girl and the walk.

"Get off Audrey's flowers," said Marie, without moving any of her person except her eyes. "And you can't have any booze."

The youths sank upon the grass. "What do you suppose we came for?" asked Bill's companion.

"Not interested in your motives," she said, lazily, her gaze mounting to the tree above her.

"Did you have a hangerover?" inquired Bill, his mind turning to last night's outings.

The girl yawned. "Haven't the faintest idea what you mean," she said. "Run away now, like two nice children."

"Aren't you even going to invite us to dinner?"

"No." She turned in the chair.

Marie laughed, and rose upright in the chair. Bringing out her small mirror, she patted her hair and smoothed her eyebrows.

so her back was toward them. "I feel good, and peaceful, and serene. Go on away."

The boys arose. "Fat chance you'll have to get invited to any more roadhouses—by us," said Bill, with rancor.

Marie closed her eyes, and breathed gently, as if in sleep.

"We won't take you," he continued.

Her bosom rose and fell with deep regularity.

Her hand, where it lay upon the arm of the chair, was relaxed.

"Go on and snooze," directed Bill's friend. "You need it."

Marie's eyes opened and turned toward him.

"I won't bring any more gin next time we go out, if you make me mad," she said. "Toodle along now."

They turned away, and went through the gate. Marie moved her head so she could watch them, amusement in her glance. "Toodledo," she called.

"Go ahead and sleep it off," shouted Bill, as they walked down the street.

Marie laughed, and rose upright in the chair. Bringing out her small mirror, she patted her hair into place, and smoothed her eyebrows.

Then she stood up, and dragged the light piece of wicker furniture to a point where she could see down the street through a thin spot in the vines.

There she sat until the maid came out to announce dinner.

Marie's brow was clouded as she slowly walked across the grass to the steps. Halting beside the telephone, she surveyed that instrument with a moment. Then she picked up the receiver, and called Parrish's office. There was no response.

She bit her lip. After a season of thought, she called the hotel where Parrish was living.

"He has gone out of town," reported the clerk, at the end of a long wait. "Shall I make a note of your number?"

The girl hung up the receiver without replying.

Sulkily she ate her dinner, making a good meal of it nevertheless, and later, she went out to the lawn. Night was falling, and the street lamps winked on as she stood, looking between the standards of the high iron fence. With an impatient gesture, she went back to the garage.

"I'd like to ride an hour or so," she told the chauffeur. "Better run out the big car."

When the machine backed from the low, concrete building, she entered it in the driveway, and sat in the deep corner of the soft cushions.

"Just go anywhere," she directed. "I want some fresh air."

The car turned up Connecticut avenue, and proceeded slowly toward Chevy Chase. Marie picked up the speaking tube.

"Don't go that way," she ordered. "Take me down town."

The driver obeyed, and soon they were moving through the evening traffic on F street. Marie's eye caught the sign of a moving picture theater.

"Let me out here," she said, through the tube. "Come and pick me up in an hour."

She alighted under the theater canopy, and paying her admission, sought a place far back in the auditorium. Through most of the film she sat with her eyes closed, thinking. It was at a crisis in the picture play that she abruptly started to her feet, and went out.

The driver, at the end of his hour, found her waiting.

"Have you ever been to my house—where my father lives?" she asked.

"I don't remember, miss," he said.

She gave him rapid directions. Then, entering the car, she sat upright while he threaded his way through the streets to the distant thoroughfare where Marie's home stood. The car drew up under the porte cochere of the dark house.

"I'll stay here tonight," she told him. After an instant's thought, she rummaged in her wristbag, and drew forth a crumpled bill. "And this is to remind you that you don't know where you took me," she added.

He touched his cap and grinned. She watched him drive away, before she turned to the house.

Ignoring the door, she passed along a path that led to the rear of the building. A short flight of steps led to a screened porch, and along the level of the floor of this porch was a protruding ledge. Mounting the steps, Marie got a foothold on the ledge, and balancing herself with fingers that clutched the supports of the screens, she edged along to a point where one screen was loose.

She carefully shoved it inward, until it clattered down to the floor within. Thereupon Marie climbed the doors, with quick agility. Entrance to the main part of the house was barred by locked doors and windows. Marie, as if accustomed to the feat, opened a window lock with a clasp pin that she drew from inside her waist.

Two minutes later she was in her own old room upstairs, the curtains drawn, and the electric light illuminating the apartment. With satisfaction, she patted the pillows on her couch and took a brief glance into the empty closets.

Then she felt her way downstairs again, without touching on the lights.

Her groping hands found the telephone, in the hall, and she gave a sigh of relief as the operator's answer showed that the line had not been disconnected. She called Parrish's hotel.

"Please leave word for Mr. Parrish," she told the clerk, "that Miss Allen has left the house on Massachusetts avenue. That's all."

JUST FOLKS

The Annual Meeting

I go to the annual meeting.

For it's always a happy event To hear the boys calmly repeating How every last dollar was spent. But I thrill with a thrill that surprises

And instantly start to pay heed When the keeper of records arises The previous minutes to read.

I fancy at times I'm not needed, As I sit undisturbed in my chair While the officers tell us what "we did."

And I wonder just why I am there, Then comes a great thought and it's "this'n."

My job, though it's one that I dread, Is to patiently sit there and listen While the previous minutes are read.

I'm not one who craves for attention, Nor one who publicity courts, I go not to start a discussion, But merely to hear the reports.

And at last when the meeting is ended If you ask what was done and was said, As the wife does, I'll say I attended And the previous minutes were read.

EVE IN PARIS

C. VOGUE

DEAR Claribel: The bride with a limited income can be quite lovely if she wears pearls that are sufficiently good imitations of the "king's ransom" sort, arranging them as I have sketched below. A wide band of silver lame goes around her head with the veil on top crowned with pearls. The dark cap-like section shown in the sketch is her hair showing under the veil.

If you are one of the bride's friends in search of a little gift, you might present her with the gift in the middle sketch.

It is supposed to be a doll in crystal beads. The one I saw was in white and green, about 4 inches tall, and suspended from a cord by a small ring at the top. Her good luck will be unending if she hangs it on her dressing-table.

As for the top sketch, I assure you it is no exaggeration. All those bracelets were really worn on one arm, and they were all of cut gold. The ring was a sapphire to match the blue stripes in the Patou sweat-shirt. The most recent stripe was black, the skirt white and pleated.

As ever, EVE.

Paris, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Motor cars to match frocks appeared for the first time at the Paris Automobile show and made a hit with feminine customers. Clothed outside in silk, linen, tapestry and even linoleum, the automobiles seemed to have come out of dress-makers shops rather than the manufacturers.

A light framework over which is stretched various kinds of materials is the main basis of the new idea. Women visitors displayed more interest in the "clothing" of the cars than in the endurance of the motors. They placed their frocks against the auto bodies to see if the colors matched and asked for books of patterns of the materials.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

DEAR Miss McDonald: Would you please advise in the following: I am 23 years old and married—have a baby 2 months old. Last year we were married and started by ourselves in a two-room apartment.

My mother has been dead since I was 14 and I have been a mother to my 3 sisters and brother till I got married and left home.

Last January father begged us to come home (my husband and I) and take care of the family and make it a home for them as everything was going on rocks since I left. He gave us all the furniture, which is practically new and we have more now than we expected to have for several years.

But the point is this—my father went away and here I have a large family on my hands and willing to work my head off to keep the family together, but father does not send us money regularly as we have asked him to. He sends it every month, maybe two or three, to suit himself, and here I have to skip going around with the veil on top crowned with pearls. The dark cap-like section shown in the sketch is her hair showing under the veil.

If you are one of the bride's friends in search of a little gift, you might present her with the gift in the middle sketch.

Paris, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Motor cars to match frocks appeared for the first time at the Paris Automobile show and made a hit with feminine customers. Clothed outside in silk, linen, tapestry and even linoleum, the automobiles seemed to have come out of dress-makers shops rather than the manufacturers.

A light framework over which is stretched various kinds of materials is the main basis of the new idea. Women visitors displayed more interest in the "clothing" of the cars than in the endurance of the motors. They placed their frocks against the auto bodies to see if the colors matched and asked for books of patterns of the materials.

BONDS MOVE FORWARD; FOREIGN ISSUES IN LEAD

All French Loans Pass Previous High; New Belgian 7s at 96 1/2.

RAIL GROUP IS BUOYANT

New York, Oct. 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Influenced by a reduction in time money rates, large overabundance of new offerings and a seemingly insatiable demand for foreign issues, the bond market continued to move forward at a rapid pace today. Trading was slightly more active than yesterday but buying was more diversified and new high records were sprinkled throughout all sections of the list.

Virtually all the French obligations closed today, although previous buying tapered off before the close. Coincident with the latest demonstration of these bonds, reports were circulated that efforts to stabilize the French currency were speeded up, and that with a satisfactory settlement of the debt question, a large French loan might be arranged in this market.

Meanwhile, an unabated demand for the new Belgian 7s carried these bonds to new high ground at 96 1/2 on another large offering, exceeding $1,000,000. South American issues were active and higher and Japanese obligations followed the yen to the year's best levels.

Trading in railroad bonds was featured by enthusiastic buying of the St. Paul issues, which moved up 1 to 2 1/2 points in response to the progress made in reorganization plans. New York and Denver & Rio Grande Western bonds were strong and large purchases of such standard investment securities as Atchafalaya General, Baltimore & Ohio General, Southern Railway 5s and Pennsylvania 5s kept these issues near the year's top prices.

Empire Gas & Fuel 6 1/2s, Pillsbury Flour 6s, Keystone Telephone 5s and American Writing Paper 5s displayed independent strength, Liberty Bonds were firmer, but the trend was mainly bond issues of $25,000,000 for the International Paper Co. of $6,000,000 for the Hungarian Republic were promptly oversubscribed. A large bond offering was said to be in prospect for the Western Power Corporation.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Oct. 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Bond movements were extremely confused today, with a curbing of the market by trading restrictions. Several specialties, including Liberty Bonds, were held up by new high records for the year while others, indicating buying and selling of a variety of character.

Oil displayed a better demand and a number of the high grade issues, including Standard Oil, showed new advances at 60 on a few sales. Admittedly, the market was more restricted by Anglo-American Petroleum Oil of Ohio, Standard Oil of Ohio, Standard Oil of Indiana, and Standard Oil of Kentucky.

A sudden outburst of buying in National Transport, which was one of the most important of the day, was followed by a sharp decline in prices. The Etey Electric Co. was held up by a new high record.

Public utilities showed little change. A jump of about 3 points in American Writing Paper 5s featured the active trading in bonds.

NEW YORK GRAIN.

New York, Oct. 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Grain futures were active today, with a closing bid, 4 1/2 times lower, 4 1/2 times higher, 4 1/2 times lower, 4 1/2 times higher, 4 1/2 times lower, 4 1/2 times higher.

PARIS MARKET.

Paris, Oct. 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Prices were heavy on the Paris market today, with a closing bid, 4 1/2 times lower, 4 1/2 times higher, 4 1/2 times lower, 4 1/2 times higher, 4 1/2 times lower, 4 1/2 times higher.

EASTERN GRID TEAMS ENTER TITLE HUNT TODAY; TECH-CENTRAL PLAY 0-0 TIE; TWO GAMES HERE

Cadets Picked to Defeat Yale

Navy Faces Michigan; Illinois Is Host to Quakers.

Brown Seeks Revenge From Dartmouth at Hanover.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (By A. P.). Football taken on the bright tints of October, faces a withering blast tomorrow in as dramatic a series of gridiron battles as any day has promised. The tests will determine the front-line ranks for the November climax.

The hopes of aspirants for Eastern championship recognition will be at stake in no fewer than ten games, most of which will be flavored with intersectional interest or traditional rivalry. Five of the major battles probably will attract crowds ranging from 50,000 to 75,000 each.

The West Point Cadets will invade the Yale bowl, seeking revenge and a victory that will keep their unbeaten record intact. Experts favor the Yale to trim the Bulldog for the first time since 1911, but the Elis have upset Army hopes on more than one occasion.

The Cadets will be without the services of their best kicker, Trapnell, but Yale is even harder hit by the loss of the offensive ace of her backfield, Larry Noble, as well as the defensive star, Bill Kline.

Three important intersectional tilts will see Pennsylvania invading the stronghold of Illinois, Michigan facing the Navy at Baltimore and the Missouri Tigers entering the jungle of the West Virginia Mountaineers. Only one of these teams, Illinois, has met defeat so far.

60,000 to See Michigan Play Navy Eleven Today

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—With an attendance which is estimated at 60,000, based on advance sales of tickets, that will make the occasion quite as colorful as an Army-Navy contest except for the absence of the gray-clad West Point cadets, the Naval Academy football team will hook up with the eleven of the University of Michigan in Baltimore stadium tomorrow afternoon. It will be the second battle of the gridiron ever staged between these two institutions.

The regiment of midshipmen will be on hand with the academy band of 80 pieces, and so will practically all naval officers attached to the local station, and some several hundred Annapolis fans. In all, the game is attracting probably greater interest than any other contest on an Eastern gridiron scheduled for the day, and it brings together two undefeated teams. Also, both are claimants to national supremacy for the season.

The Middles visited Ann Arbor last fall only to return to Annapolis after absorbing the most severe drubbing ever administered to a navy eleven. Navy was unprepared to meet such a whirlwind overhead attack as was staged by "Hurry Up" Yost's Wolverines. They were literally swept off their feet.

The sting of that defeat still is smarting in the Navy camp. And while Michigan, on its showing so far this season, appears to have considerable edge as compared to Navy, there is no question of Navy's improved strength in all departments, and it is the consensus of feeling here that the Western conference leaders are in for a busy afternoon.

"Our chances look good," said Commander Jonas H. Ingram, director of athletics, in speaking of prospects of the battle. And that about voices the sentiment of every one at the Naval Academy. Michigan is mighty good. That is the impression gained by Ingram who saw the Wolverines in action against Illinois at Ann Arbor last Saturday.

Late Threats In School Contest

McKinley Team Gains on Frequent Punting Duels.

Blackstone, Blue and White Leader, Is Powerful Factor.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

IF extra periods were played in football games, Central and Tech High school elevens might still be seeing across the chalk marks of the Wilson Memorial stadium with neither team able to score. At least, that was the impression gathered by most of the 4,000 fans who watched the rivals battle to a scoreless tie yesterday.

Such an outcome is generally unsatisfactory to both teams, but to Central, which entered the game on the short end of the odds, the result is a moral victory. Even so, the fact that Central did not win erases its chance for the scholastic championship.

Tech, on the other hand, has figured in two ties and its hopes for first honors lie in victories over Eastern and Business should Western meet defeat at the hands of either Central or Eastern.

The last period produced the most thrills of the game. Tech was getting nowhere with a line attack, when Ritter shot a long pass to Mullin, who seemed on the way to a touchdown. Capt. Frank Blackstone hauled him down 18 yards from the Central goal line.

Three line plays gained 8 yards for Tech and with two yards to go for a first down, the Manual Trainers chose to let Ritter try for a field goal. His effort went under the bar.

Central then began a parade up the field. Simmons tossed a pass to Blackstone and on the next play the Central captain dove through the center of the Tech line and came out free. He raced 30 yards to Tech's 35-yard line before being downed by Bailey. With a half-minute remaining to play, Simmons threw a long pass which Ritter, Tech, intercepted as the game closed.

It appeared that Ritter had been tackled for a safety. He was on the 2-yard line, however. 2-yard line, however.

A forward pass, Ritter to Cassassa, put Tech on Central's 33-yard line at the start of the second quarter, but Central held and recovered the ball only to fumble on the first play. Lindey recovering for Tech.

A penalty and Central's defense forced Tech to lose the ball and Simmons tossed a pass to Park who tackled on Tech's 20-yard line just before the half.

The third period was a repetition of the first quarter. Kreimelmeyer again outkicked Blackstone, while neither team appeared in danger.

Capt. Blackstone was the backbone of the Central defense. His most conspicuous assistants were Sproul, Michaelson and Sweet. Shaw Blackstone, brother of the Central leader, was equally as effective for Tech, although Capt. Stutz, Oehmann and Kreimelmeyer made more than their share of tackles.

Ritter was one of Tech's chief ground gainers in the scoreless tie game with Central yesterday and above he is seen sweeping around the Central flank with only Sargent in his path. The Central end brought Ritter down after a 15-yard journey.

WALKER GETS BOUT WITH FLOWERS

Middleweights Signed in Title Match Dec. 3.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (By A. P.). Negotiations have been closed for Tiger Flowers, Georgia negro, to defend his world's middleweight title in a 10-round match with Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion, at the Coliseum, Chicago, December 3, according to announcement today by Walk Miller, manager of Flowers.

Miller said he signed with Jim Mullins, Chicago promoter, for the match after being guaranteed $65,000 by Jack Kearns, Walker's manager. Kearns has taken over Flowers' percentage and shouldered the financial risk in order to clinch the match, Miller declared.

Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, also was a bidder for the bout but refused to offer Flowers more than $50,000, according to Miller.

Flowers also has been signed for a 10-round match at Chicago, November 22, with Eddie Huffman, California light heavyweight. It will be at catch-weights.

Miller said he was leaving for Atlanta today to confer with "Pa" Stripling on a proposal to take over a controlling interest in the management of Young Stribling. Miller has offered $100,000 for a three-fourths share in the young Georgia boxer and hopes to close the deal in a few days.

Yanks Sign Fletcher As Assistant Coach

Fletcher joins the Yankee board of strategy after three years as manager of the Phillies. He was notified of his release ten days ago and has been succeeded by Stuffy McInnis.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (By A. P.). Breaking away from the banquet board at which he has heard his praises sung for more than a month, Gene Tunney will sail for Bermuda tomorrow.

An apparent effort by the newly crowned champion to slip quietly from New York revived rumors of marriage and a honeymoon until friends discovered that Gene had made only a single one-way reservation on the liner Furness-Bermuda.

68,000 TO SEE PENN AND ILLINOIS

Quakers Favored But Zuppke Has Team Primed for Game.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29 (By A. P.). Pennsylvania, coming west to atone for the defeat which Red Grange and his mates plastered on the Quakers at Franklin field a year ago, will meet Illinois at Champaign tomorrow in one of the important intersectional games of the season.

The game will draw a probable attendance of between 68,000 and 70,000, with Chicago and Ohio State, playing on Stagg field here, holding secondary interest in the day's mid-West program.

The game at Illinois is rated as a toss-up, although some of the side line experts favor Pennsylvania, as the Quakers have displayed a greater offensive and defensive game with a varied attack built around the old hidden ball game. Coach Zuppke, of Illinois, has spent a tumultuous week in preparing his line to smear the Penn deceptive game before it can get under way.

Both Pennsylvania and Illinois boast strong running back fields, but the Quakers have a little edge in line smashing, while Illinois presents a more dangerous threat in scoring from the field, due to the ability of Frosty Peters.

Illinois also offers a powerful threat with the Lanum, Stewart, Daugherty passing combination. Pennsylvania, however, believes it can match this combination with Rogers and Thayer, providing Rogers starts.

Although Illinois was beaten by Michigan, Pennsylvania does not figure tomorrow's game to be a walkaway. Illinois revealed great strength even in defeat and has improved as a result of the practice. The game will find two powerful forward walls thrown against each other, starting two of the best wingmen on the intercollegiate gridiron this season, Kasell and Thayer, captains of Illinois and Pennsylvania, respectively.

SPORT TRAIL SPRINTS TO VICTORY IN LAUREL PURSE

Winner Tires In Stretch Drive

Merry Monarch Wins by Nose Over Grand Bey in Opener.

Trapmint Beats Out Trover Entry and Scores in Upset.

Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 29. Sport Trail, the McLean stable's homebred son of the Porter, won the Mount Royal purse, at 4 furlongs, feature of the card at Laurel this afternoon. Frederick Johnson's Brown Bud was second and E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer third, in a whipping finish.

Sport Trail led his field from the start, and he was a fast pace and led by a comfortable margin into the homestretch. The finish found him firing, and C. Lang was forced to a drive to stall off determined opposition from Brown Bud. Buddy Bauer was third, another length away. A heavy play developed on Flippant, but the colt was never a figure in the running.

Merry Monarch, under faultless handling by Jockey Collett, and sporting colors for the first time for J. P. Smith, dominated the running throughout the 6 furlongs of the opening number, withstanding a drive in game fashion to get the verdict by a scant nose over Grand Bey.

The latter was going faster than the winner in the closing strides. He just failed to get up in time, but with another step would have reversed the placing.

Wellfunder, after racing with the winner for the greater part of the journey, failed to make his stamina last long enough, and he had to be content with the minor end.

Flatters of the cheaper grade supplied the entertainment in the second event, which was over the mile and one furlong route, and with the running came an easy win for Grass Tree, one that ranged grouped in the field.

From a good start, Care of Ouevree was rushed into the lead and he raced in command of the situation until challenged by the winner, and on reaching the far turn Grass Tree took command, withstood a mild effort from Greek Friar and the last furlong found him gradually drawing away to be winner by a margin slightly better than two lengths. Greek Friar saved the place from the favorite, Crosswise.

The third brought forth a rather smart lot to test their merits and with the contest came a thrilling duel in which Mrs. W. J. Gibbins' Marcellus, a keen factor in the running, took the measure of Mrs. A. E. Alexander's consistent campaigner, Care Free.

The latter was installed the choice, and he flattered by going into the lead directly after the break to show the way until reaching the furlong pole, where Marcellus came along with his final rush that proved a stumbling block for the Alexandra starter, and he managed to get up in the last 20 yards to get the decision by a head. A neck further back came The Cocoon.

The second upset of the afternoon came in the fourth event which was fashioned for 3-year-olds and up and for which the entry of W. C. Trover, composed of War Man and Mysterious were given the most attention in the wagering, but the best they could accomplish out of the contest was to finish second and third.

Trap Mint at long odds and racing in the van of his opposition broke out of the maiden ranks to score by a length, while the Trover entry was separated by four lengths.

The all-gate race that was down for decision as the sixth event on the program was scheduled to run over the mile route brought forth a representative lot to strive for honors.

The H. P. Whitney establishment sent the winner to the post in Bostonian, who in his previous starts had miserably with lesser stars.

He turned in one of his best races and incidentally was the first 3-year-old to take the measure of older company this fall. Bostonian was by no means neglected in the wagering, but had a hard time to outflank Alley from the W. S. Kilmier establishment, with Lord Martin saving the show portion of the purse.

WASHINGTON CLUB GOLFERS IN SEMIFINAL ROUND

Russell Plays Medalist Today

Paxton Wins on 20th Hole; Davidson Also Survives.

'Ad' Men Compete at Columbia; Women Qualifying.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE struggle for the championship of the Washington Golf and Country club was strongly contested yesterday in the second round of match play, no less than three of the batteries being extended to the nineteenth and twentieth holes. The semifinals this morning will be Arthur Russell, paired against Frank Rosch, the medalist, and Fred D. Paxton, whose opponent will be J. H. Davidson, one of the younger members of the club.

Russell reached the semifinals by defeating R. J. Morman, on the nineteenth green, Morman missing a 3-foot putt that would have given him a half. Paxton was 4 up and 8 to play, but his opponent, Denise Barklow, staged a fine comeback and the match was all even at the eighteenth tee, the home hole being halved. On the twentieth green, Paxton, who played from the right-hand trap to the green, holed a putt of 8 feet for a 3, while Barklow, who was on the green from the tee, approached within 3 feet of the cup and then missed the putt.

It would benefit Georgetown if Lebanon does unwork the overhead game, as Little's machine is sadly in need of practice against it, while Syracuse boasts of a finely developed aerial attack which is calculated to cause Georgetown no end of trouble.

With the exception of Scott and J. Carroll, guard, the same line-up that has started Georgetown's season is certain to enter the game. Carroll will take the place of Scott, whose hip still bears marks of the Pittsburgh game.

Maryland's second team will start against Little, while the regulars are certain to enter the game. The starting Terrapin array will be: Stephens and Schaefer, ends; Eppel and Winterberg, tackles; Porter and Fletcher, guards; Rothberg, center; Boyd, quarterback; Schrader and Parsons, halfbacks; and Pugh, fullback.

The semi-final round in the club championship will be played tomorrow between Page Hufty and R. J. Henderson in the upper bracket and Capt. K. J. Fielder and Dr. Bruce L. Taylor in the lower half. The final round will be played tomorrow.

G. U. AND MARYLAND IN HOME CONTESTS

final local appearance of the season this afternoon at American League park, meeting the Lebanon Valley outfit. The latter contest will start at 2:30 o'clock.

George Washington and the Quantico Marines are scheduled for out-of-town engagements, the Hatchets playing Penn State at State College, Pa., and the Leathernecks stacking up against Providence at the Rhode Island State capital.

Tomorrow Catholic university will tangle with the powerful Loyola eleven at New Orleans in the first Sunday college gridiron clash on record.

In the home attractions Maryland and Georgetown are the favorites, the former facing an easier opponent than the Hilltop eleven.

Judging from their last performance the Marylanders should win almost as they please from Gallaudet, although Coach Teddy Hughes' charges have been lying low and making careful preparations. When Kessler, Stevens, Thomas and Snyder begin their prancing with the ball Gallaudet, however, can hope for little.

Lebanon Valley should give Georgetown a stiff workout at least, according to Coach Little, and that is just what the Hilltop coach thinks is necessary to put Georgetown in condition for the coming battle with Syracuse.

Former Akron (Ohio) schoolboy star, will start in the Georgetown backfield in place of Buck O'Neil. In the event that Lebanon attempts a forward pass attack, Little is counting on Scott to break it up, for the promoted substitute has no peer as a defensive back among the entire Georgetown squad.

It would benefit Georgetown if Lebanon does unwork the overhead game, as Little's machine is sadly in need of practice against it, while Syracuse boasts of a finely developed aerial attack which is calculated to cause Georgetown no end of trouble.

With the exception of Scott and J. Carroll, guard, the same line-up that has started Georgetown's season is certain to enter the game. Carroll will take the place of Scott, whose hip still bears marks of the Pittsburgh game.

Maryland's second team will start against Little, while the regulars are certain to enter the game. The starting Terrapin array will be: Stephens and Schaefer, ends; Eppel and Winterberg, tackles; Porter and Fletcher, guards; Rothberg, center; Boyd, quarterback; Schrader and Parsons, halfbacks; and Pugh, fullback.

The semi-final round in the club championship will be played tomorrow between Page Hufty and R. J. Henderson in the upper bracket and Capt. K. J. Fielder and Dr. Bruce L. Taylor in the lower half. The final round will be played tomorrow.

Members of the Advertising association, which has been in session in this city during the week, played their annual golf tournament on the course of the Columbia club yesterday morning and afternoon, the prize winners being as follows:

Low gross, morning—Winthrop Hoyt (Cherry Valley, N.Y.).
Low net, morning—William A. Sturgis (St. Albans, N.Y.).

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the child after colds or flu. Man's condition serious
Forced to give up work when infection spreads.
Read how he healed the trouble

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 20.—"I had a very bad cut under my eye and also a dog-bite on my hand, both of which became infected. Although I did everything for these infections, nothing helped. They seemed to grow worse instead of better and were pronounced chronic. When my hand got very bad and when the infection caused by the cut under my eye spread, I began to give up all hope, as I was unable to do any kind of work. Then a friend of mine recommended Resinol Ointment. After using about half of a small jar I was completely cured and am now back to work again. Resinol is certainly a wonderful salve and I mean to have a jar on hand from now on." (Signed) Edward Smith, 714 Dolman St.

WALL STREET NEWS BRIEFS

New York, Oct. 29 (By A. P.).—Business men in the Southwest have taken the decline in cotton prices very seriously, and do not expect any serious depression, although later cotton drops has meant a setback to business as well as to the grower, says Daniel U. Grover, president of the St. Louis-Southwestern railway (Cotton Belt). "Our earnings this quarter should hold very closely to last year's. With cotton as it is, we can not look for large earnings next spring, which probably will show a decline from early 1926 returns."

Bond trading on the New York Curb Market has expanded so largely this year that it has been necessary to inaugurate three sections, one for the foreign bonds, and two for domestic bonds, to facilitate transactions. The new arrangement will start November 1, 1926, and a comparison with September last year developed an increase of $54,508.24.

Operating revenues in September showed but a nominal increase to $295,123.30, compared with $290,777.02 in August, operating expenses amounted to $268,691.80 in September 1925.
